

PARIS TALKS: War, Peace Not on Agenda

PARIS (UPI) — U. S. spokesmen said today negotiations to end the Vietnam War have been delayed temporarily because North Vietnamese diplomats first want to talk only about "procedural matters."

"We came here prepared to enter into substantive talks today," said William Jordan, spokesman for the U. S. delegation to preliminary talks with North Vietnam.

But he said the North Vietnamese want today's opening session — to discuss only procedure.

Asked if it appeared Hanoi is stalling on getting down to positive negotiations, Jordan said, "I do not want to characterize their action."

No Peace Issues

Making clear that no war and peace issues would be discussed in the opening round, aides announced that the two top bargainers — America's roving Ambassador W. Averell Harriman and former North Vietnam Foreign Minister Xuan Thuy — were skipping the initial meeting.

Their top aides would attend in their place, it was announced.

Jordan told newsmen he assumed the Communists today wanted to take up such subjects as seating arrangements and "possibly the agenda" for the talks.

The U. S. spokesmen said he was unable to say when asked if he thought real negotiations might be held later in the day, after the opening meeting. But Jordan said he felt there would be no real negotiations on war and peace issues today.

When the real negotiations will start "is one of the things to be discussed at this procedural meeting," Jordan said.

The decision to call this afternoon's preliminary get together was reached after Harriman and Thuy paid individual 15 minute courtesy calls on French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville at the Quai d'Orsay.

Mai Van Bo, the top Hanoi representative in Paris, told reporters Thuy's meeting with Couve de Murville was an expression of the growing friendship between the Vietnamese and the French people. He refused to expand on what he meant by a "technical" session this afternoon.

Harriman told newsmen he and his old friend did not discuss "substantive matters" although it was assumed they talked of the preliminary negotiations opening with North Vietnam.

The 76-year-old veteran American negotiator and North Vietnam's chief delegate, former foreign minister Xuan Thuy, were holding their first session, possibly about 10 a. m. EDT, across a 20-foot square table in a setting arranged by Couve de Murville.

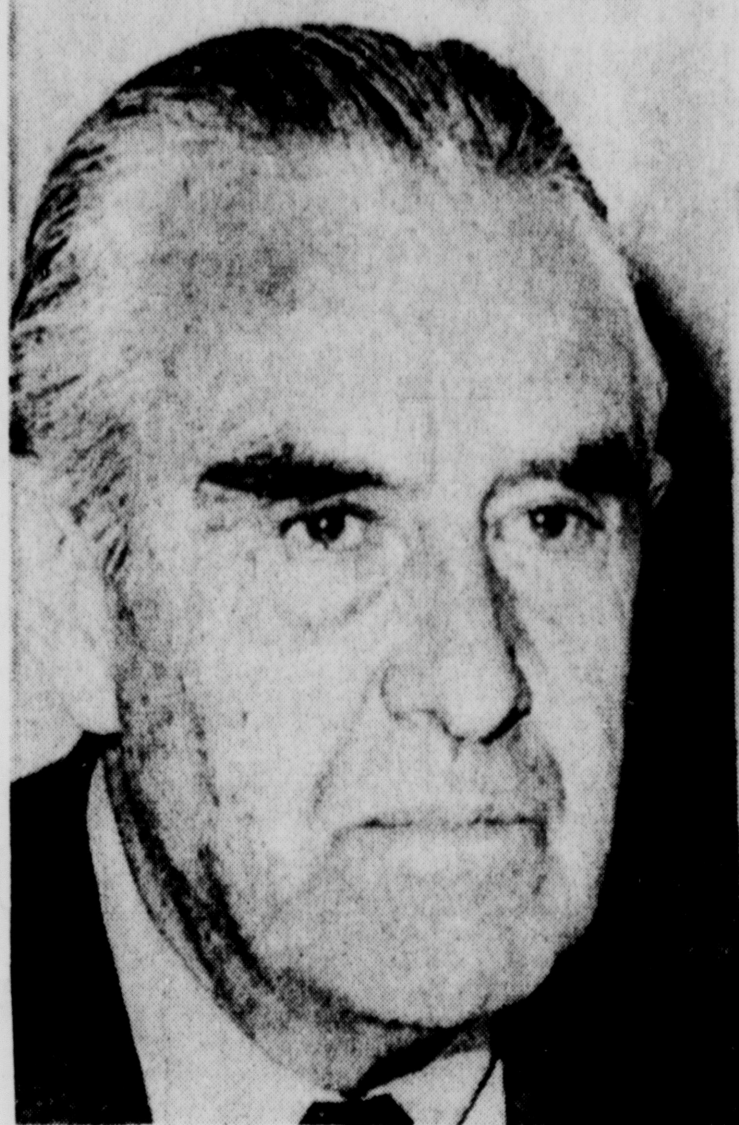

Call Triggers Activity

Harriman's call on the Quai d'Orsay, Couve de Murville's ministry, triggered the diplomatic activity.

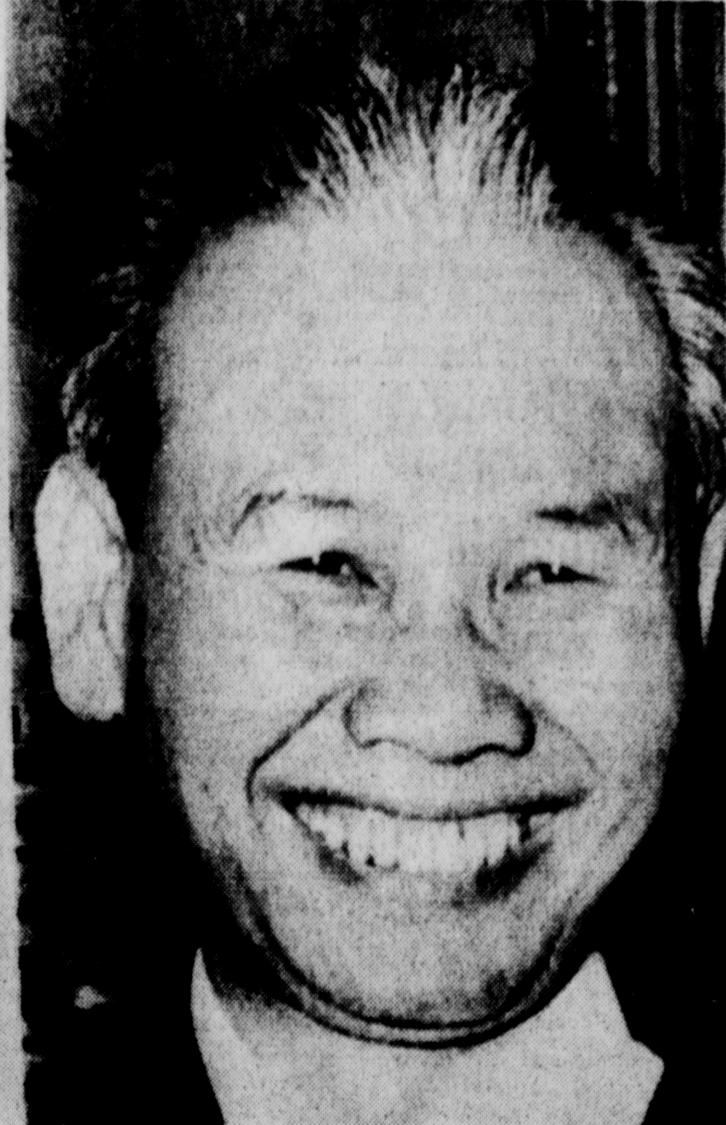

North Vietnam's permanent representative in Paris, Mai Van Bo, called at the Quai d'Orsay. He spent 30 minutes reviewing plans for the talks with Harriman.

Thuy himself was meeting Couve de Murville later. The French foreign minister went into his sessions after conferring with

12,000 Reds Heading for Saigon; Heavy Shells Hit VC in Capital

By JACK WALSH

SAIGON (UPI)—Allied troops today battled 12,000 Communists heading for Saigon and for the first time used heavy artillery against some 1,500 guerrillas nestled in the capital for the sixth day.

4,000 Red Toll

About 4,000 Communists have been killed since the Viet Cong Sunday launched a nationwide offensive to coincide with opening of U.S.-North Vietnam peace talks in Paris today. Intelligence experts said 3,300 of them have been killed in and around Saigon.

In the city where 650 Communists died Thursday night and today, allied gunners opened up with eight-inch artillery shells against Viet Cong bands harassing the western and southern city limits. Outside of town, American and South Vietnamese forces grappled with 19 battalions of Viet Cong trying to break through allied lines and reinforce the withering guerrilla units inside the capital.

N.V. Units Used

Some of the Communist battalions were formed of North Vietnamese units ordered for the first time into the battle for Saigon.

On the southern edge of Saigon, near the "Y" bridge, the capital's biggest, Viet Cong bands tried vainly to grab that major gateway to the city. Today remnants of a guerrilla battalion battered for three days holed up in the ruins of a shanty town 400 yards west of the bridge.

The heavy artillery slammed into their positions. U.S. tanks crunched cautiously closer, spitting streams of machinegun bullets. The Viet Cong had rockets.

U.S. Cobra helicopter gunships whirled above, firing their mini guns and rockets at the Communists. On the Saigon side of the bridge, some of the city's 156,000 civilian refugees—100,000 of them left over from the Communists' February invasion of Saigon—watched the battle for their shanty town.

To the west, near Saigon's Phu Tho race track, men of the 199th Light Infantry Brigade dug in and waited until the Communists were almost on top of them before firing. The GIs then radioed for napalm strikes within 25 yards of their positions.

One splash of the fiery jelly gas hit too close. It showered a dozen Americans. The GIs rolled on the soggy delta earth to extinguish the flames while Communist bullets licked the dirt around them.

Refugees Homeless

In the city, where more than 50 blocks of buildings had been burned out in combat, thousands of refugees made homes for themselves in the streets.

They clutched packages of clothes, food and portable valuables. Children watched funeral processions pass. There was no accurate count of civilian casualties. Scores of bodies still lay under the heaps of rubble.

But government officials said at least 92 civilians have died in hospital and 2,411 have been treated for wounds.

None to Go Hungry

Allied troop losses were less than one-twentieth of the Communist casualties.

Trucks sat at the city's edge, their loads of vegetables rotting. Police refused to let them in: a favorite Viet Cong way to get into Saigon is to hide among the vegetables. Prices for fruit, vegetables and meat doubled and more. But the government had stocks enough of rice. No one went hungry.

Hoffay's Job: 3 Mentioned

By WALTER S. CLARK JR.

Appointment of a successor to retiring Deputy Police Chief Grover S. Hoffay on a temporary basis, is expected to be on the agenda for the meeting of the Kingston Board of Police Commissioners Thursday night, May 16.

Hoffay, who is presently on vacation leave, will complete his services with the city police department as of June 1. Hoffay, 56, joined the police department in 1940 as a regular patrolman, rose from the ranks and was sergeant and lieutenant before becoming deputy chief in 1959.

It was learned from the office of the Municipal Civil Service Commission, that an examination to provide an eligibility list for deputy chief probably will not be held for some time because of a reclassification of city department jobs. It is understood that the police commissioners called for a list about a month ago when it was learned there would be a vacancy.

According to partially confirmed reports, at least three police officers are under consideration for appointment to office of deputy chief. The names of Lts. Garvin Fisher and Julius M. Glassman and Sergeant Gurney Burger Jr. have been mentioned as possible appointees to fill the vacancy to be left by Hoffay's retirement. Lt. Fisher, a native of Kingston, joined the police force on July 15, 1956. He was promoted to the rank of sergeant in March, 1963, and was advanced to the present rating of lieutenant in May, 1967. Lt. Glassman has been a department member since 1954. He was named Patrolman of

Rugged Opposition for Tax

By EDMOND LEBRETON

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rugged House opposition awaits a compromise measure combining President Johnson's proposed income tax hike with a mandatory $6 billion spending slash.

Senate-House conferees nailed down Thursday a version tackling the spending cut demand onto the 10 per cent income tax surcharge Johnson has sought since last August.

In most respects, the conferees agreed to the bill passed earlier by the Senate. There has been no test in the House. Reversing earlier indications, handlers of the legislation said it probably won't be brought to a House vote next week. They cited the time required to prepare a report on the complicated bill.

But it was evident the delay also is planned for careful head counts and persuasion of undecided members.

A major factor is Johnson's attitude. He faces the choice of blessing the measure because it contains the revenue he says is desperately needed, or fighting it—even with a veto if it is passed—because of the $6 billion cut.

That's $2 billion more than the figure he reluctantly agreed was acceptable and he has said a cut of this depth would be against the national interest.

Johnson himself has not commented on the conferees' decision. But a White House spokesman said he did not know whether the President would approve the bill if it is passed.

Observers noted a majority of senators who come up for reelection this year voted against the measure. All House seats are up for election this year.

Further complicating the dilemma of House members is the scheduled arrival during the next few days of the Poor People's Campaign in Washington. The administration has said a $6 billion budget cut will mean drastic slashes in education and other social programs—which campaign leaders are demanding be expanded.

The $6 billion actual spending cut under budget estimates for the year beginning July 1 fits into a $10 billion appropriations cut recommended by the conference. The President also would be directed to recommend savings of $8 billion to be made next January out of unspent previous appropriations.

The bill also calls for reducing the federal payroll by leaving one of every four vacancies unfilled until the mid-1966 level is restored. It was estimated this would mean a reduction of about 250,000. The payroll restriction would be a permanent provision.

The surtax, to extend through June 30, 1969, would yield an estimated $11.6 billion. Other revenue-increasing measures in the bill would bring the total yield to $15.6 billion. They are a speedup in corporate tax collections and continuation of the 7 per cent automobile excise tax rate and 10 per cent telephone excise tax rate.

Approve New Bridge Proposal

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

The issuance of $132,500 in capital notes and $2,517,500 in serial bonds for construction of 15 new bridges was approved at Thursday night's session of the County Legislature, which also recognized the Civil Service Employees Association as bargaining agent for some 700 county employees.

The bond issue and capital notes will provide funds for the replacement of 15 county bridges most of which were built in the horse and buggy days of the county. The funds will pay the cost of razing the old spans, construction of the new concrete and steel bridges, acquisition of land for the sites and incidental improvements.

After considerable discussion and a request to table by William R. West, R-Woodstock, until a complete study can be made to determine the total bonded indebtedness of the county, the motion to table was defeated 27 to 4 with William F. Speaking in support of the proposal was Frank L. Joseph Martorana, R-9th District, urged support of the bond issue and stressed that the project would include razing of 15 bridges in the next five years.

Also defending the project was Majority Leader Douglas

V. Dye, R-2nd District, who agreed that some of the spans were hazardous to traffic. Minority Leader Roger W. Mahie, D-7th District also supported the project and stressed that it should not be postponed and noted the growth of the county and the increase in vehicular traffic.

The proposal was offered by Legislator Miller.

The resolution recognizing the Civil Service Employees Association, (CSEA) as sole bargaining agent for the more than 700 county employees was adopted with very little debate. Paul Brazier, D-Saugerties asked some informational questions which were answered by Legislator Martorana and County Attorney Abram Molyneux.

The resolution was introduced by Martorana, Mahie, Ernest J. Gardner, R-11th District; Richard D. Nace, R-2nd District and E. Stirling Potter, R-7th District. Only Sangaline, Kingston legislator, voted against the recognition.

A proposal introduced by Martorana sought support of the State Legislature to revise the election law to either eliminate conventions and sanction primaries to designate candidates or make the party conventions official. The proposal making primaries unnecessary was defeated 21 to 10 with all five Democrats and 16 Republicans voting against the resolution.

Wilson's Hold Shaky

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson's hold on Britain's ruling Labor party was threatened today by an unprecedented electoral rout of his party from town halls from one end of Britain to the other.

Conservatives swept Labor out of strongholds that had not known a Tory mayor for generations. In England and Wales, the Laborites were left in control of only 43 town halls out of 368, and only seven were in big cities.

London went almost solidly Tory as Labor lost 16 of the 20 boroughs it held in the capital. In the provinces, Labor lost 560 seats and the Conservatives gained 570.

Pueblo Release?

WASHINGTON (AP)—A congressman whose subcommittee deals in Asian matters says there is some indication North Korea is moving toward release the 82 crewmen of the U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo.

But administration officials said they had no new progress to report in the long negotiations to win release of the ship and crew.

Rep. Clement J. Zablocki, D-Wis., chairman of the House subcommittee on Asian and Pacific affairs, told a newsman that while he couldn't go into details, "there is some indication that they will be released."

"There is no doubt that we are coming nearer to a return of the men," he added.

Optimism for Miners

HOMINY FALLS, W. Va. (UPI)—Optimism prevailed today for the rescue of 15 miners marooned on islands deep in a coal mine despite frequent frustrations from failing equipment.

Hope all but faded that 10 co-workers would be found alive.

The 25 were sealed inside a tunnel of the Maust Coal and Coke Co. mine Monday when a wall of water from an adjacent abandoned mine roared in.

Ten of the men were working at the spot where the flood began. They have not been heard from since and are feared dead. A hole was drilled Thursday from the surface to the area in which they were believed to be, but all that was found was water.

Wilson's Hold Shaky

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson's hold on Britain's ruling Labor party was threatened today by an unprecedented electoral rout of his party from town halls from one end of Britain to the other.

Conservatives swept Labor out of strongholds that had not known a Tory mayor for generations. In England and Wales, the Laborites were left in control of only 43 town halls out of 368, and only seven were in big cities.

London went almost solidly Tory as Labor lost 16 of the 20 boroughs it held in the capital. In the provinces, Labor lost 560 seats and the Conservatives gained 570.

Pueblo Release?

WASHINGTON (AP)—A congressman whose subcommittee deals in Asian matters says there is some indication North Korea is moving toward release the 82 crewmen of the U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo.

But administration officials said they had no new progress to report in the long negotiations to win release of the ship and crew.

Rep. Clement J. Zablocki, D-Wis., chairman of the House subcommittee on Asian and Pacific affairs, told a newsman that while he couldn't go into details, "there is some indication that they will be released."

"There is no doubt that we are coming nearer to a return of the men," he added.

Optimism for Miners

HOMINY FALLS, W. Va. (UPI)—Optimism prevailed today for the rescue of 15 miners marooned on islands deep in a coal mine despite frequent frustrations from failing equipment.

Hope all but faded that 10 co-workers would be found alive.

The 25 were sealed inside a tunnel of the Maust Coal and Coke Co. mine Monday when a wall of water from an adjacent abandoned mine roared in.

Ten of the men were working at the spot where the flood began. They have not been heard from since and are feared dead. A hole was drilled Thursday from the surface to the area in which they were believed to be, but all that was found was water.

Troops Alerted As Marchers Near Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of Army troops in the Washington area reportedly will go on alert Saturday to be ready for any violence accompanying this weekend's arrival of the vanguard of the Poor Peoples' Campaign.

The Pentagon said the Army was taking certain "prudent actions" but declined to detail them.

Sources said these actions include alerting troops at posts and bases near Washington to be set to move, if necessary, in as little as one hour.

Elements of the 82nd Airborne Division at Ft. Bragg, N.C., also will be alerted but won't be flown to the capital area unless needed, sources said.

Units of the District of Columbia National Guard, most of them military policemen, will undergo weekend drills at the D.C. Armory and will be available for any riot duty. Other guardsmen will stand by at home or within easy reach.

Progress Observed

It was reported that some Army agents were observing the progress of the Poor Peoples' Campaign to determine the probable size of the crowds that will reach Washington, the mood of the marchers and those who are leading and influencing them.

Although leaders of the campaign maintain they will adhere to nonviolent means in seeking expanded social programs from Congress, fears have been expressed on Capitol Hill and elsewhere that violence could erupt.

Chairman John L. McClellan, D-Ark., has told the Senate his investigating committee has uncovered plans by militants—he refused to name them—to grab control of the campaign and turn it to rioting.

Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., a Negro, challenged McClellan's charges Thursday at a news conference, saying the Arkansas's statements "sound to me like some more rumors that are calculated to disturb the citizenry."

Close to Agreement

The Washington Post reported meanwhile that federal officials are close to agreement with campaign leaders on a site for the shanty-town or tent city the demonstrators plan to erect to house the marchers.

The Post said a large open field in West Potomac Park near the Lincoln Memorial and its reflecting pool was under consideration. Use of this site would be limited to 3,000 persons, the paper said.

Dems to Meet

The regular monthly meeting of the Rosendale Democratic Club Inc. will be held Thursday, May 16, at 8 p.m. in the Town Community Building, Maple Hill. All members may attend the meeting. Refreshments will be served.

Smoke Bombs Rout Crowd In Newburgh

NEWBURGH, N.Y. (AP) — Police wearing protective masks used "smoke bombs" Thursday night to rout a crowd of Negroes assembled on the street in the fourth night of disturbances in this racially tense Hudson River city.

Earlier Negro leaders urged 250 persons at a rally to begin an economic boycott of white merchants to back demands on low-income housing.

Donald Lee of Buffalo, president of the New York State Conference of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, urged a "selective buying" campaign as civil rights leaders and city officials negotiate on the site of a new low-income housing project.

The project site is said to be a major underlying cause of the current unrest that began Monday night. A total of 40 arrests have been made during a series of minor disturbances.

Four more arrests were made Thursday night after police set off canisters of "smoke." There was scattered rock throwing and window-smashing, and police reported a furniture warehouse had been broken into.

Earlier Thursday, City Manager Theodore Maurer said the City Council was going to ask Orange County legislators to seek state authorization to impose a curfew as a means of curbing the disorders.

Negro leaders met Thursday with Mayor George McKneally to discuss the project site. Another meeting was scheduled for Saturday.

Jerry Guess, an NAACP official, said NAACP chapters throughout the northeast had been asked to attend a mass rally here Saturday.

Schantz, Smith Defeated In City GOP Caucuses

By CHARLES BERMPOHL

Two Republican caucuses were held in the City of Kingston last night with both a three-term incumbent and last year's candidate for alderman-at-large being denied their party's designations for aldermen.

Robert C. Schantz, alderman from the old second Ward seeking the nomination to represent the new sixth Ward, and Louis J. Smith, seeking the nomination of the newly formed fifth Ward lost their bids.

The votes were three to one against them in both caucuses. Voting against Smith was the man he ran with in last year's election — former GOP candidate for mayor C. John Bechtold.

Brendon Alexander was chosen to represent the sixth and Burton Davis is the regular party designee for the fifth Ward. Not long after the actions, Alderman Schantz was quoted as saying, "Because Mr. Smith and I voted for (H. Clark) Bell, we are no longer wanted or needed."

"This is terrible and it is rotten politics."

Voted for Bell

Schantz was referring to the fact that both he and Smith voted for Bell for the state assembly seat at the unofficial Republican county convention in March.

The Republican city committee went overwhelmingly for Peter J. Savago at the convention and it is known that city chairman John Ray Mayone personally backs Savago for the GOP nomination.

Bell challenged the party's designee and the two men will face one another at the June 18 primary.

City chairman Mayone declared that the ward committeemen "made decisions within the democratic process. They were not dictated to."

Referring to the possibility of a primary battle, Mayone said, "If they (Schantz and Smith) want a primary, let them take the proper course."

"I will personally welcome the opportunity to have the Republicans in the wards vindicate the committeemen's actions."

Alderman Schantz claimed that Smith and he "will fight for the Republican cause and not for Mr. Mayone."

With the exception of Schantz, Smith and Bechtold, all the committeemen who voted in last night caucuses were newly chosen.

Voting against Schantz were Edward Ashdown, Brendon Alexander and Anthony L. Crespino.

Voting against Smith were Bechtold, Gilbert Adin and Burton Davis.

Not Bringing Pluralities

One Republican committeeman claimed that one of the reasons why Schantz was not renominated was because his popularity was down "and he was simply not bringing in the pluralities that Republicans have always brought in," in the old second.

Smith was not an incumbent. Davis, designated to run in the new fifth, is an employee of IBM in Kingston, and Alexander works for Western Printing and Lithographing Co. in Poughkeepsie.

Can Win Two-Man Primary Race—Eugene

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy has made a glum assessment of his chances of besting Sen. Robert F. Kennedy in Nebraska, battleground of the moment in the presidential primary circuit.

Nebraskans of both parties will vote Tuesday.

McCarthy said in an interview Thursday that if it were just a Kennedy-McCarthy contest he could match the New Yorker.

"If we were meeting head-on," he said, "if it were just us two in the contest, I think the outcome would be 50-50. But these others who are in the race will hurt me more than him."

Liberal on Ballot

Besides the names of the two senators, the Democratic ballot will list President Johnson even though he announced March 31

he would neither seek nor accept nomination for another term. And a write-in campaign is building for Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, whose decision to seek the nomination came too late for him to be listed on the ballot in Nebraska.

A prediction that none of the Democratic contenders will receive a majority Tuesday came from Nebraska Democratic Chairman John Mitchell.

Kennedy told the United Auto Workers convention in Atlantic City Thursday that countries "unable or unwilling" to manage their own affairs ought not to expect the United States to take on the chore.

"We can help those who are able to help themselves to meet the needs and desires of their own people for justice and independence," he said. "But we cannot do this job for them."

The United States, Kennedy said, "must adopt a foreign policy which says, clearly and distinctly, no more Vietnams."

An indication of another candidate's thinking on Vietnam came in Lawrence, Kan., Thursday when Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, who is challenging Richard M. Nixon for the GOP nomination, said the South Vietnamese should be permitted complete freedom in choosing the type of government they want.

"What if they choose to be Communist?" said one of the students in a crowd of 17,500 that packed the University of Kansas fieldhouse. "Would you allow that as President?"

"I think these people have got to have the right to choose what kind of government they want," Rockefeller answered. "If that is what they want to do, that is their idea of freedom."

Resnick, Nickerson, O'Dwyer Debate Slated Monday

Kingston's big debate between Democratic senatorial candidates Joseph Y. Resnick, Eugene Nickerson and Paul O'Dwyer is set for Monday night at 7:30 in the Kingston High School auditorium.

It will mark the first time the trio will share the podium in this area. The event is being sponsored by the Young Democrats of Ulster County and the public is invited.

In outlining the program, John Parete who is in charge of arrangements, stated that each candidate will be allowed 10 minutes for his presentation followed by a period in which each may question the other. At 9:15 p.m., a panel of four representatives of local news media will pose questions to the candidates who will later conclude the program with statements.

Persons wishing to submit questions to the candidates may do so by writing to Box 75, Shokan.

Lines of the debate will be fairly well defined according to national standards, according to John Frankle, chairman of the Young Democrats.

Kennedy Candidate

Nickerson, who is the candidate favoring Robert F. Kennedy for president, will stop off in Kingston for the debate midway through an upstate campaign tour that will take him to Binghamton, Albany and Syracuse.

Resnick, the Ellenville congressman, who has been conducting the Aronheimer hearings in Washington this week, and taping a television show in New York, will return to his home district for the debate before continuing on to more speaking and television engagements up and downstate next week.

JOSEPH Y. RESNICK

O'Dwyer, a follower and supporter of Sen. Eugene McCarthy will arrive from his New York City bailiwick. He is the candidate for and the founder of the Coalition for a Democratic Alternative.

O'Dwyer has served the Democratic party in a variety of capacities. He joined Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and Herbert Lehman in the formation of the Committee for Democratic Voters, was co-chairman of the 1960 Citizens Committee for Kennedy-Johnson and worked in subsequent campaigns for Mayor Robert Wagner and Percy Sutton.

As a lawyer, he has represented a variety of labor unions and in the City Council he proposed and had passed a minimum wage law.

Long a participant in the fight for civil rights in New York, Kentucky and Mississippi, he defended demonstrators in the Federal Court at Jackson, without compensation.

Nickerson, Nassau County executive, is a nationally recognized expert on metropolitan problems. He is chairman of the Urban Affairs Committee of the National Association of Counties and served on the Advisory Commission on Public Welfare to the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. He is chairman of the Metropolitan Regional Council's Committee on Transportation.

Elected Three Times

In Nassau County where he has been elected three times, he administers the state's largest local government outside New York City serving 1.5 million citizens. He established Nassau's first code of ethics, Human Rights Commission, Department of Commerce and Industry, Department of Labor, Juvenile Aid Bureau, Small Business Council and Job Development Center.

Nickerson was a Kent Scholar at Columbia Law School and served as law secretary to Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone and Judge Augustus Hand of the U. S. Court of Appeals.

A Key Issue

One of the key issues in which Resnick has been involved is the Beth Liuni adoption case. Resnick was first elected to Congress Nov. 3, 1964 and is now a second-term Democratic representative from the 28th Congressional District. A former inventor and successful businessman, he has been an outspoken champion of liberal causes and has won a reputation for fighting for what he believes to be right, no matter how unpopular the cause. Resnick has been involved in the Veterans Affairs and Agriculture Committees and is chairman of the House Agriculture Committee's Rural Development Subcommittee. He has battled for federal assistance for his district and secured funds for education, urban renewal, watershed, flood and sewage control, post office construction, soil conservation and wildlife preservation.

Ayler was the father of five, police said. Kenmore is a village in the Town of Tonawanda.

Ayler was the father of five, police said. Kenmore is a village in the Town of Tonawanda.

Double Parking Problem

One of the most damaging traffic offenses against the public interest in the City of Kingston, and one that is too little pursued and punished, is the double parking of automobiles along Broadway and other main streets in the city.

At the height of traffic in the late afternoon, it takes about a half hour to proceed up Broadway from McEntee Street to the uptown section of the city. Finding space occupied at the curb, motorists park their cars parallel to the curbed cars, leave them and do their errands. Because of this obstacle of the double-parked vehicle encroaching on the open lane, traffic capacity of the street is greatly reduced. Trucks and commercial vehicles are frequent violators even when space is available at a nearby curb.

At certain hours of the day along busy streets, parking of motor vehicles becomes a problem and compliance with the law means inconvenience. However, if traffic is to flow, double parking even for short periods, must not be permitted.

Double parking is a menace and the only way it can be eradicated is through strict enforcement of all parking laws.

Taxes and More Taxes

Tax-weary residents of New York State will be hit again with additional taxes amounting to $153 million. The latest tax package, passed by the Legislature, includes increases in the state income, gasoline and cigarette taxes.

The gasoline increase is one cent a gallon, bringing the total state levy to seven cents. The cigarette increase is two cents a package, making the total tax 12 cents. These taxes will not go into effect until June 1.

The increase in the income tax, which is retroactive to January 1, will apply to all 1968 incomes. This will affect the larger incomes as it adds four new high-income brackets to the top of the present tax schedule.

On all levels of government, there seems to be no end to taxes. New York State residents are among the most heavily taxed in the nation.

If the people were given an opportunity to vote directly on tax measures, we are certain they would call a halt to these continuing imposts. And the result would be long-range tax programs which would bring economical and efficient administration of government.

Property owners in the Kingston Consolidated School District gave evidence of their distaste for higher real estate taxes when they went to the polls Tuesday and voted down the proposed tax limitation by a vote of 3,845 to 174.

The number who went to the polls was almost twice as many as those of other years when only trustees to the board of education were to be elected. This is an improvement but still not representative of the taxpayer's concern over soaring taxes. Officials must be both encouraged and impressed.

Many Inherent Dangers

The Congress now has under consideration some $80 billion worth of recommendations for social, welfare, poor and security payments and additional food allotments, President Johnson reminded the nation when asked about the Poor People's March on Washington.

The point the President was making was that the Executive has already moved to alleviate the condition of the poor, the rest is up to Congress. Therefore, he suggested, if the poor are marching on Washington, they will be better served if after presenting their viewpoint the Congress and appropriate agencies can have time to try to act on it and execute it.

There are many inherent dangers in the idea of building a shanty town and camping in Washington indefinitely. Since no individual can give any assurance that they can control the situation that might be provoked if action is not immediately forthcoming, precautions have been taken to provide the capital with proper protection.

We hope there will be no need for countermeasures. But the situation can be so explosive, that any serious outbreak could turn the country against the marchers and put the movement for relief of the poor back years. You can't crowd thousands of people into makeshift quarters long, without creating angry violence.

What the individual can do for himself about his health now is far more important than what can be done for him, says Dr. Milford O. Rouse of Dallas, president of the American Medical Association. The individual also helps himself when he seeks health services in time for a doctor to help him.

David Lawrence Says Primaries in Reality Mean Very Little

WASHINGTON — Sporadic primaries — meaningful to some observers and meaningless to others — are expensive for the candidates, and do not necessarily indicate who will be nominated by either party.

Every candidate can derive some satisfaction from the Indiana primary this week, Senator Robert F. Kennedy of New York didn't get a majority of the Democratic votes, but he did get more than either Senator Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota or Indiana's Governor Roger Branigan, who is presumably a supporter of Vice President Hubert Humphrey. Yet former Vice President Richard Nixon, who was unopposed on the Republican side, got almost as many votes as Senators Kennedy and McCarthy combined.

Perhaps the most important effect is what significance is being attached to the Indiana results by the delegates in other states of the union which do not have primaries. There is certainly no sign that any of the Democratic aspirants has the nomination tied up. Nor can Mr. Nixon be sure that Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York, who has entered the race but is not participating in the primaries, will not develop a strong organization at the National Convention and become a formidable competitor.

There are few states which have primaries, and their chief value is to give each of the candidates a chance for nationwide publicity prior to the conventions. The speeches being delivered today, however, may not be pertinent by the time the conventions are held in August, as the issues before the country may be even more complex than they are now. The country will want to know then how each candidate stands. This could have much more meaning than what was said to the Indiana voters in the campaign prior to this week's primary.

Maybe the primaries this year will serve a useful purpose in demonstrating to the people the futility of the present formula. In a statement just issued, Senator Mike Mansfield of Montana, Democratic leader, says that "The tragedy of primaries is that in reality they mean very little."

He points out that they are not always binding on the delegates. He calls attention to the tremendous amount of money they cost each candidate, and says that in a sense primaries are "auctions on a temporary basis." He adds: "Personally, I would like to see primaries, if they are going to be maintained, conducted in all states on a day certain and under a rigid limit of expenditures, rather than to continue the haphazard and expensive procedure which is now followed. If this were done, it would mean, in my opinion, that the national conventions, at which the delegates — and not the people — make the choice, could be done away with."

The Montana Senator also proposed that the electoral college be abolished, so that a president would be elected by direct vote of the people. Only 11 states have presidential preference primaries, and in the other states there are various methods of choosing delegates, usually through political organizations. This correspondent suggested in his dispatch on March 18 that a nationwide primary would compel each candidate to explain fully his proposed policies or courses of action. Those seeking the nomination would not be able to rely on the maneuvers behind the scenes among state delegations at a convention. This correspondent added:

"The people would have a better chance to express themselves under a system whereby a single national primary would be held on the same day in all states. It could be stipulated by law that the parties whose nominees obtained the two highest totals would be eligible for the balloting on Election Day."

If a reform were made and a single national primary were established, the next step logically would be a revision of the electoral system so that the Congressional district — instead of the whole state — would be regarded as a unit for the purpose of casting each of the electoral votes of a state. In this way, a president and vice president would be more likely to be chosen by a majority of the people of the country. This would avoid what has happened several times in history, when a president has been elected by a majority of the electoral votes but not by a majority of the popular votes cast by the citizens of the nation.

Ervin, an astute constitutional lawyer, also phrased the amendments to forestall the Supreme Court from ruling on their constitutionality. Since it is questionable whether Ervin's clever language can really prevent this, Senate conservatives are gambling on a switch of one vote on the closely divided court to uphold the amendments.

FBI boss J. Edgar Hoover also sent his emissaries around to see McClellan about incorporating into the crime bill some additional clauses that would give the FBI a legislative monopoly over training.

This is opposed by the International Association of Chiefs of Police, which has complained that the FBI in the past has discriminated against police who refuse to kowtow to Hoover. The IACP wants authority to set up its own regional training centers.

Drew Pearson Says Johnson Finally Agrees To Sanction Wiretapping

WASHINGTON — In order to get Senate action on his crime control bill, President Johnson has made a secret deal with Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark., not to veto the wiretap amendments.

Senate conservatives also expect to shove down the President's throat some amendments overturning the Supreme Court's controversial decisions on the rights of criminal suspects. In effect, the amendments would knock out the safeguards which the high court has upheld in recent years and would virtually negate the authority of the federal courts to review criminal cases.

As chairman of the Senate Criminal Laws and Procedures Subcommittee, McClellan refused last year to process the crime control bill unless the President would agree to legalizing telephone taps. This was made plain by the dour McClellan at a private White House meeting with the President last fall.

LBJ happens to feel strongly that people ought to be able to talk on the telephone without government snoops listening in. He uses the telephone constantly himself and suspects his own wires are tapped by inquisitive government agencies. He also is a great admirer of Chief Justice Earl Warren, who is a staunch defender of Constitutional freedoms.

Rather than permit the vital crime measure to die, however, the President called McClellan to the White House recently and agreed to his terms. LBJ not only promised not to veto the wiretap provisions but to persuade House Judiciary Chairman Emanuel Celler not to tie them up in the House.

Once McClellan turned the crime bill loose, however, Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., came to him with certain hamstringing amendments. These were carefully worded to overrule the Supreme Court on the rights of citizens who are arrested by the police.

Ervin, an astute constitutional lawyer, also phrased the amendments to forestall the Supreme Court from ruling on their constitutionality. Since it is questionable whether Ervin's clever language can really prevent this, Senate conservatives are gambling on a switch of one vote on the closely divided court to uphold the amendments.

FBI boss J. Edgar Hoover also sent his emissaries around to see McClellan about incorporating into the crime bill some additional clauses that would give the FBI a legislative monopoly over training.

This is opposed by the International Association of Chiefs of Police, which has complained that the FBI in the past has discriminated against police who refuse to kowtow to Hoover. The IACP wants authority to set up its own regional training centers.

But Hoover, going behind the back of Attorney General Ramsey Clark, has persuaded McClellan to amend the crime bill to grant the FBI monopoly.

Meanwhile, it looks as if the Senate hardbodies are unwilling to take action against rampant crime unless they also are permitted to ride roughshod over individual rights.

Is Thailand Next? The Pentagon isn't shouting about it, but it has had to send more troops into Thailand. While true talks are scheduled for Vietnam the situation in Thailand has deteriorated.

It may well be that the United States will find itself with troops being transferred from one war to another in Southeast Asia.

At present more than 43,000 American troops are stationed in Thailand. The Air Force is operating eight bases throughout the country. This is more troops and more bases than the United States had in South Vietnam between 1954 and 1964. At the end of 1964, there were only 18,000 U. S. troops in South Vietnam.

In addition to 43,000 U. S. troops now in Thailand, weapons and equipment have been stockpiled to support a far larger force. Meanwhile the communists are stepping up their infiltration of the country, and guerrilla activity has increased in three separate areas.

The United States is bound by treaty to help defend Thailand from a communist takeover, and it seems certain that Thai authorities in the face of a communist threat will invoke the treaty. The difficulty is that Thailand is a monarchy supported by a military dictatorship, with almost no vestige of democracy. There is extreme wealth at the top, extreme poverty at the bottom, and corruption running rampant through the ruling class.

It's a country made to order for communist revolt, and if the United States is going to defend it, we should begin now to demand basic social and economic reforms.

Hard-hitting Sen. Stephen Young, D-Ohio, is demanding that tax loopholes be closed and an excess profits tax be levied against war profiteers before the general public has to pay a tax increase.

Young reveals that 35 Americans with incomes over $500,000 paid no income tax at all in 1965, the last year in which full statistics are available. Among these were five individuals with incomes above $5 million a year.

"Our income tax laws are replete with loopholes favoring a few at the expense of the many," declared the Senator from Ohio. "The most inexcusable giveaway is the 27 1/2 per cent oil and gas depletion allowances, which costs taxpayers $4 billion annually."

Mao Is Planning Long-Range Subversion in Thailand

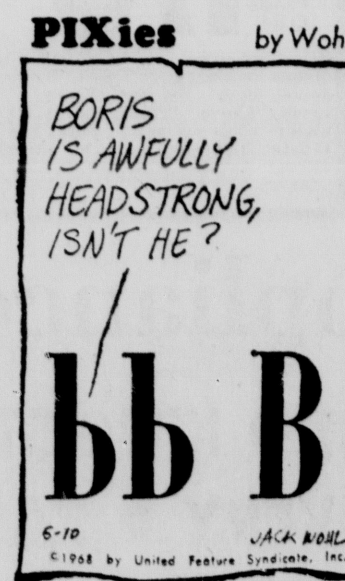

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent
NORTHWEST THAILAND (NEA) — The Communist Chinese sergeant had been recently captured in a battle just north of where we are now.

He was born in Canton, sent to Peking to study in a military signal school, then shifted to Hanoi for a period of infantry indoctrination. After completing these courses, he was transferred to Laos for field training with a platoon of Lao troops.

When they were ready for action, the sergeant and the Lao unit were moved into northwestern Thailand for the current guerrilla operations in this inaccessible, mountainous area.

This sergeant says most guerrilla troops in northwestern Thailand are Miao tribesmen. The Chinese military men are there as specialists and as senior officers. He understands the Chinese officers plan all major operations.

The danger of this Chinese sergeant is what his presence portends for the future.

Apparently the Communists have divided this part of the world into spheres of responsibility. The Red Chinese are primarily responsible for Thailand, Burma, Malaysia, Indonesia and Pakistan, the North Vietnamese for South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia. But they work in very close harness. For example, one major reason for this year's intensive North Vietnamese attacks in Laos seems to be to accomplish the opening through Laos of new Ho Chi Minh trails to Cambodia and to several points in Thailand.

At the same time, through Chinese and North Vietnamese co-operation, old roads from Red China into Laos are being improved, with major branches leading into northwestern Thailand and to Cambodia.

These major improvements are obviously aimed at co-ordinated operations over the years ahead. Even more serious here is another trend. The sons of many Thai Chinese residents have been sent to Communist China over the past years for schooling. It is known that numbers of these young men have returned from Red China only to disappear from sight. With a few exceptions, they are apparently not connected with the Communist underground terrorism in northeast Thailand or the fighting in the northwest.

These educated young men melt into the Thai cities. There's a strong possibility that a considerable number of these young men are what the trade calls "sleepers." That is, they've been trained as organizers, agents or intelligence men, but have been told to do nothing, live normal lives, work their way into their communities and wait.

These underground Chinese will likely be called upon to begin operations five or even 10 years in the future, when

Because of such allowances, 20 major companies in 1965 paid corporate taxes "at a rate of only 6.3 per cent on profits, while other U. S. companies paid 48 per cent, said Young.

A New England TVA Not since TVA days have private power lobbyists been so busy in Washington as in a current battle to stop funds for the proposed Dickey-Lincoln School Dam Project on the St. John's river in northern Maine.

This would be the first multi-purpose, hydroelectric project in New England, providing not only flood control but cheap electric power and recreational facilities for vacationing, fishing, boating, etc.

The dam is sponsored by Rep. William Hathaway, D-Me., and was authorized by Congress in 1963. The utility lobbyists, however, are trying to shut off funds for land clearance and eventual construction.

According to expert testimony, the taxpayers would get back $1.90 in benefits for every $1 spent. The dam project, located on the northern border, also would help Canadian relations. In fact, Canada has been negotiating to pay as much as $500,000 a year for downstream benefits.

Reason the power companies are up in arms is that Dickey-Lincoln would be a "little TVA" — another yardstick showing that electric power can be produced for less than consumers have to pay the private utilities.

The big utility in this area is the New England Electric Coordinating Council, a bloc of New England companies including Connecticut Power and Light, Boston Edison and Central Maine Power Company.

However, utility lobbyists from all over the United States have been bombarding Congress as a House Appropriations Subcommittee begins hearings on a small $1-276,000 fund for pre-construction work on the Maine project.

What opponents hope to do is kill this item (part of a general public works bill) in the full Appropriations Committee on an "economy" pretext. This may be difficult, however, because Rep. Michael Kirwan, D-Ohio, potent chairman of the subcommittee, favors the Dickey-Lincoln dam.

So do President Johnson, Speaker John McCormack, Majority Leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma, the AFL-CIO, and many others. House opponents include the entire Connecticut delegation in the House, led by Democrat Robert Giamio, a voice of the Connecticut Power and Light Company.

Private power firms in Indiana, Florida, Ohio, Pennsylvania and many other states have pressured their Congressmen to oppose the Maine "TVA."

they've risen to positions of some influence in their communities. Some, it is thought, may be quietly organizing already but ordering their organizations to do nothing. (It should be noted in passing that most Chinese in Thailand are known to be loyal to the government).

The long-range problem of Communist underground subversion is more worrisome than the current fighting. It also will be more difficult to defeat, which is why we and our Allies should be making some well-thought-out long-range problems now, even while the current war is going on.

In a statement just issued, Senator Mike Mansfield of Montana, Democratic leader, says that "The tragedy of primaries is that in reality they mean very little." He points out that they are not always binding on the delegates. He calls attention to the tremendous amount of money they cost each candidate, and says that in a sense primaries are "auctions on a temporary basis." He adds:

"Personally, I would like to see primaries, if they are going to be maintained, conducted in all states on a day certain and under a rigid limitation of expenditures, rather than to continue the haphazard and expensive procedure which is now followed. If this were done, it would mean, in my opinion, that the national conventions, at which the delegates — and not the people — make the choice, could be done away with."

The Montana Senator also proposed that the electoral college be abolished, so that a president would be elected by direct vote of the people. Only 11 states have presidential-preference primaries, and in the other states there are various methods of choosing delegates, usually through political organizations. This correspondent suggested in his dispatch on March 18 that a nationwide primary would compel each candidate to explain fully his proposed policies or courses of action. Those seeking the nomination would not be able to rely on the maneuvers behind the scenes among state delegations at a convention. This correspondent added:

"The people would have a better chance to express themselves under a system whereby a single national primary would be held on the same day in all states. It could be stipulated by law that the parties whose nominees obtained the two highest totals would be eligible for the balloting on Election Day."

If a reform were made and a single national primary were established, the next step logically would be a revision of the electoral system so that the Congressional district — instead of the whole state — would be regarded as a unit for the purpose of casting each of the electoral votes of a state. In this way, a president and vice president would be more likely to be chosen by a majority of the people of the country. This would avoid what has happened several times in history, when a president has been elected by a majority of the electoral votes but not by a majority of the popular votes cast by the citizens of the nation.

U.S. - North Viet Talks Declared More Complex Than Geneva Parley

PARIS, May 7—One of the top French negotiators of the 1954 Geneva Conference described the forthcoming talks between Americans and North Vietnamese as far more complex and delicate than were those at which France agreed to withdraw from Indochina.

This diplomat said his country came to the conference table in 1954 to find an honorable exit from disastrous battlefields, and had no preconditions. "We just sat down with Ho Chi Minh's delegates and started discussing, with out much of a pre-established plan," he said.

"It was a very different situation from the situation in which Ambassador (W. Averell) Harriman finds himself," he added.

With long experience of Chinese and North Vietnamese dallying, the French diplomat feels that one first difficulty will arise from Ho's determination to demand the halt of American bombings of North Vietnam without offering any concession in exchange.

If the American negotiators insist on the San Antonio formula of some North Vietnam gesture in exchange for a bombing halt, North Vietnam might argue that there is no equivalent on the North Vietnam side to the American bombings and therefore it could give nothing in exchange for a halt to them.

The only American concession that could really meet a decrease or halt in North Vietnamese reinforcements of Viet Cong forces, the North Vietnamese will contend, would be an equivalent reduction in the reinforcements Washington sends to South Vietnam. So long as this is not offered, North Vietnam will continue to ask for an unconditional bombing halt.

The French diplomat also stated that, in his view, Americans and North Vietnamese at this stage were in agreement on nothing, except perhaps on a vague future application of the terms of the Geneva Conference, which calls for independence, neutralization and withdrawal of all foreign troops.

He warned that if the United States insisted on maintaining the present partition of Vietnam—a Korean solution, he called it—the talks would soon reach a dead end.

This, he said, would be a solution that could only be imposed by a 100-per-cent victorious country on a defeated one, and he doubted that Hanoi would ever accept it.

If, however, Washington agreed that the governments of North and South Vietnam should seek their own solution, and become permanently neutral under the guarantee and supervision of the United Nations and the big powers, then he thought an answer could be found.

The French diplomat, who knows Ho personally, said he was convinced that the North Vietnamese president would willingly refrain from belonging to any bloc of countries, provided South Vietnam agreed to do the same.

He also said that Ho would agree to delay the reunification of the country for an undetermined period if American troops were to quit and if a new government

Drew Pearson Says Johnson Finally Agrees To Sanction Wiretapping

WASHINGTON — In order to get Senate action on his crime control bill, President Johnson has made a secret deal with Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark., not to veto the wiretap amendments.

Senate conservatives also expect to shove down the President's throat some amendments overturning the Supreme Court's controversial decisions on the rights of criminal suspects. In effect, the amendments would knock out the safeguards which the high court has upheld in recent years and would virtually negate the authority of the federal courts to review criminal cases.

As chairman of the Senate Criminal Laws and Procedures Subcommittee, McClellan refused last year to process the crime control bill unless the President would agree to legalizing telephone taps. This was made plain by the dour McClellan at a private White House meeting with the President last fall.

LBJ happens to feel strongly that people ought to be able to talk on the telephone without government snoops listening in. He uses the telephone constantly himself and suspects his own wires are tapped by inquisitive government agencies. He also is a great admirer of Chief Justice Earl Warren, who is a staunch defender of Constitutional freedoms.

Rather than permit the vital crime measure to die, however, the President called McClellan to the White House recently and agreed to his terms. LBJ not only promised not to veto the wiretap provisions but to persuade House Judiciary Chairman Emanuel Celler not to tie them up in the House.

Once McClellan turned the crime bill loose, however, Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., came to him with certain hamstringing amendments. These were carefully worded to overrule the Supreme Court on the rights of citizens who are arrested by the police.

Ervin, an astute constitutional lawyer, also phrased the amendments to forestall the Supreme Court from ruling on their constitutionality. Since it is questionable whether Ervin's clever language can really prevent this, Senate conservatives are gambling on a switch of one vote on the closely divided court to uphold the amendments.

FBI boss J. Edgar Hoover also sent his emissaries around to see McClellan about incorporating into the crime bill some additional clauses that would give the FBI a legislative monopoly over training.

This is opposed by the International Association of Chiefs of Police, which has complained that the FBI in the past has discriminated against police who refuse to kowtow to Hoover. The IACP wants authority to set up its own regional training centers.

But Hoover, going behind the back of Attorney General Ramsey Clark, has persuaded McClellan to amend the crime bill to grant the FBI monopoly.

Meanwhile, it looks as if the Senate hardheads are unwilling to take action against rampant crime unless they also are permitted to ride roughshod over individual rights.

Is Thailand Next?

The Pentagon isn't shouting about it, but it has had to send more troops into Thailand. While truce talks are scheduled for Vietnam the situation in Thailand has deteriorated.

It may well be that the United States will find itself with troops being transferred from one war to another in Southeast Asia.

At present more than 43,000 American troops are stationed in Thailand. The Air Force is operating eight bases throughout the country. This is more troops and more bases than the United States had in South Vietnam between 1954 and 1964. At the end of 1964, there were only 18,000 U. S. troops in South Vietnam.

In addition to 43,000 U. S. troops now in Thailand, weapons and equipment have been stockpiled to support a far larger force. Meanwhile the communists are stepping up their infiltration of the country, and guerrilla activity has increased in three separate areas.

The United States is bound by treaty to help defend Thailand from a communist takeover, and it seems certain that Thai authorities in the face of a communist threat will invoke the treaty. The difficulty is that Thailand is a monarchy supported by a military dictatorship, with almost no vestige of democracy. There is extreme wealth at the top, extreme poverty at the bottom, and corruption running rampant through the ruling class.

It's a country made to order for communist revolt, and if the United States is going to defend it, we should begin now to demand basic social and economic reforms.

Tax Loopholes

Hard-hitting Sen. Stephen Young, D-Ohio, is demanding that tax loopholes be closed and an excess profits tax be levied against war profiteers before the general public has to pay a tax increase.

Young reveals that 35 Americans with incomes over $500,000 paid no income tax at all in 1965, the last year in which full statistics are available. Among these were five individuals with incomes above $5 million a year.

"Our income tax laws are replete with loopholes favoring a few at the expense of the many," declared the Senator from Ohio. "The most inexcusable giveaway is the 27½ per cent oil and gas depletion allowances, which costs taxpayers $4 billion annually."

Mao Is Planning Long-Range Subversion in Thailand

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent
NORTHWEST THAILAND (NEA) — The Communist Chinese sergeant had been recently captured in a battle just north of where we are now.

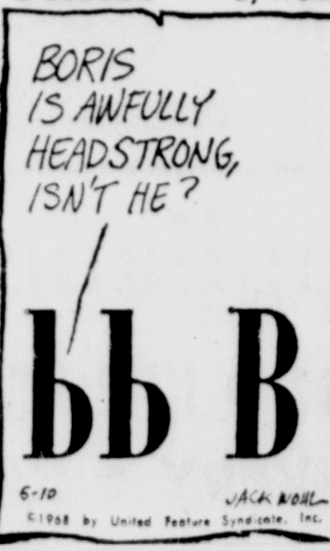

He was born in Canton, sent to Peking to study in a military signal school, then shifted to Hanoi for a period of infantry indoctrination. After completing these courses, he was transferred to Laos for field training with a platoon of Lao troops.

When they were ready for action, the sergeant and the Lao unit were moved into northwestern Thailand for the current guerrilla operations in this inaccessible, mountainous area.

This sergeant says most guerrilla troops in northwest Thailand are Mao tribesmen. The Chinese military men are there as specialists and as senior officers. He understands the Chinese officers plan all major operations.

The danger of this Chinese sergeant is what his presence portends for the future.

PIXies by Wohl

Because of such allowances, 20 major companies in 1965 paid corporate taxes "at a rate of only 6.3 per cent" on profits, while other U. S. companies paid 48 per cent, said Young.

A New England TVA

Not since TVA days have private power lobbyists been so busy in Washington as in a current battle to stop funds for the proposed Dickey-Lincoln School Dam Project on the St. John's river in northern Maine.

This would be the first multi-purpose, hydroelectric project in New England, providing not only flood control but cheap electric power and recreational facilities for vacationing, fishing, boating, etc.

The dam is sponsored by Rep. William Hathaway, D-Me., and was authorized by Congress in 1965. The utility lobbyists, however, are trying to shut off funds for land clearance and eventual construction.

According to expert testimony, the taxpayers would get back $1.90 in benefits for every $1 spent. The dam project, located on the northern border, also would help Canadian relations. In fact, Canada has been negotiating to pay as much as $500,000 a year for downstream benefits.

Reason the power companies are up in arms is that Dickey-Lincoln would be a "little TVA" — another yardstick showing that electric power can be produced for less than consumers have to pay the private utilities.

The big utility in this area is in the New England Electric Coordinating Council, a bloc of New England companies including Connecticut Power and Light, Boston Edison and Central Maine Power Company.

However, utility lobbyists from all over the United States have been bombarding Congress as a House Appropriations Subcommittee begins hearings on a small $1,276,000 fund for pre-construction work on the Maine project.

What opponents hope to do is kill this item (part of a general public works bill) in the full Appropriations Committee on an "economy" pretext. This may be difficult, however, because Rep. Michael Kirwan, D-Ohio, potent chairman of the subcommittee, favors the Dickey-Lincoln dam.

So do President Johnson, Speaker John McCormack, Majority Leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma, the AFL-CIO, and many others. House opponents include the entire Connecticut delegation in the House, led by Democrat Robert Giamio, a voice of the Connecticut Power and Light Company.

Private power firms in Indiana, Florida, Ohio, Pennsylvania and many other states have pressured their Congressmen to oppose the Maine "TVA."

they've risen to positions of some influence in their communities. Some, it is thought, may be quietly organizing already but ordering their organizations to do nothing. (It should be noted in passing that most Chinese in Thailand are known to be loyal to the government).

The long-range problem of Communist underground subversion is more worrisome than the current fighting. It also will be more difficult to defeat, which is why we and our Allies should be making some well-thought-out long-range problems now, even while the current war is going on.

House Votes For Three More 3-Day Weekends

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House, according to a saddened minority of traditionalists, has decided it can tell a lie about when George Washington was born.

It also voted late Thursday to uproot Memorial Day and Veterans Day and shift them, along with Washington's Birthday, so that each would fall on a Monday instead of a specific day of the month.

The vote was 212 to 83. The main object of the legislation, which now goes to an uncertain fate in the Senate, is to establish more three-day weekends a year.

Under the bill, beginning in 1971 the official celebration of Washington's Birthday would be shifted from Feb. 22 to the third Monday in February. Memorial Day, now May 30, would be celebrated the last Monday in May. Veterans Day would be switched from Nov. 11 to the fourth Monday in October.

Christmas, New Year's Day, Thanksgiving and the Fourth of July would not be affected.

Civic Group Sets Memorial Benefit for CP

"Happiness is Helping," and once again, as a memorial to the late Hilda Hopkins, the Union Center Civic Group will sponsor a project for the benefit of the Cerebral Palsy Center.

Until her death in 1965, Mrs. Hilda Firmbach Hopkins of Poppletown Road, Ulster Park, had found happiness in helping the youth of her community and handicapped children in particular. Her life of service inspired friends and neighbors to pledge their support to a memorial project for the Center each May.

This year's project will be a penny social, cake sale, and sale of donations towards an award to be held Saturday, May 18, at the town hall, Port Ewen, 7 to 9 p. m.

The committee in charge of the event include the Mmes. Gottfried Berger, Robert Berger, Donald Dawson, and Otto Thoden.

All members of the Union Center Civic Group will furnish a suitable article for the penny social and a baked article for the event. Friends who wish to contribute in any way may contact any member of the committee if help is needed in delivering the items.

"Through the Hilda Hopkins Memorial Project, we hope to make our contribution to the CP Center this May a substantial one," Joseph E. Sills, president of the Union Center Civic Group, said in announcing the event. The public may attend.

Tobacco Firms Pledge $8 Million Smoking Study

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. (UPI)—The American Medical Association Thursday announced six major tobacco companies have pledged $8 million to an AMA study of cigarette smoking and health.

While announcing the contribution, the AMA said that questions about the effects of smoking on health, raised by a U.S. surgeon General's report four years ago, have not yet been adequately answered.

The AMA said it is not yet known how harmful smoking may be to health or how much safer scientists could make the smoking habit.

At no time during his remarks did Dr. Gerald D. Dorman, vice president of the AMA Education and Research Foundation which received the grant money, specifically mention cancer.

The Surgeon General's report linked cigarette smoking and cancer. "For many years," Dorman said, "the American Medical Association has repeatedly warned that smoking may be a health hazard, and this opinion has been supported by numerous other scientific organizations."

"But major questions about the problem remained unanswered by anyone—what is the exact chain of events inside the body when tobacco smoke is inhaled, which specific cells might be directly affected by smoking, what are the elements in smoke which might create health hazards, and can these elements be minimized or eliminated?"

The foundation, the AMA said, was started with money from the nation's physicians and a $10 million grant from the six tobacco companies—American Tobacco Co., Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp., Liggett & Myers Inc., Lorillard Corp., Philip Morris Inc., and

PARIS TALKS: War, Peace

President Charles de Gaulle at the Elysee Palace.

The French were not participants in the Harriman-Thuy confrontation. Some Western diplomats openly speculated that Hanoi's main purpose in agreeing to the talks was to try to trap the United States into a total bombing pause without giving any concession in return. They said on his arrival that the talks here "are a sign of American military defeat." Even as he spoke, large areas of Saigon were in flames as the result of a bloody new Viet Cong offensive. They reaffirmed Hanoi's demand for a total and permanent end to U.S. bombings of the North as the price for any really substantive peace negotiations.

President Johnson reaffirmed Thursday the pledge of the United States and its allies to pull all their troops out of Vietnam within six months after the war ends "and the level of violence subsides" an imprecise definition which was contained in the October 1966 Manila summit conference communiqué.

Hanoi Restates Demands

North Vietnam, at the same time, was restating its demands for complete withdrawal of American forces to be followed by a political settlement based on the principles of the National Liberation Front (NLF), the political arm of the Viet Cong.

The differences of the two sides, thus, have narrowed not one bit in 18 months but the hope here is that their desire to end the bloodshed may lead to some compromise.

American officials, however, are warning newsmen not to place unrestricted faith on the French government's assertion that the present exploratory talks will lead into full blown peace negotiations at this site.

U. S. Firm

President Johnson has said he needs some reason to "assume" a complete bombing halt will not be taken advantage of by the communists. U.S. officials said today that still stands and has been reinforced by the experience of the past five weeks.

Harriman, arriving in Paris after Thuy had made his noisy entrance, declined to indulge in any public argument nor would he say how long he expected the discussions to last.

Relaxed and affable, Harriman told newsmen he was "not hired to be a prophet."

He made it clear he or his chief deputy, former Under-Secretary of Defense Cyrus Vance, would be on hand as long as there was hope.

Harriman met with other members of his delegation and with the new U.S. ambassador to France, Sargent Shriver, shortly after arriving at his suite in the Hotel Crillon. Aides said the elderly troubleshooter was ready to go and hoped the Communists were equally eager for peace.

Marion, was presented Thursday to the Kingston Kiwanis Club by Robert S. Russell, treasurer of the corporation and son of the president of the organization.

According to company records, which the speaker termed as incomplete, the Saugerties Manufacturing Company was incorporated in 1895 to "make and convert paper into envelopes and account books." The original factory was a four-story building where the "process began on the fourth floor and graduated down to the first floor and the shipping department."

Records further reveal that in 1925 F. L. Russell, president of the present corporation, came to the Saugerties Manufacturing Company which at that time employed 14 people. In 1962 the Russell Corp., successor to the 1895 company, moved to its new modern plant in Mt. Marion where 60,000 square feet of floor space was available. In 1965 an additional 20,000 square feet of space was erected, and today the company employs 150 people. Russell presented the present company has over 30 years of service with the corporation and 35 employees have been with the company over 20 years.

The techniques of paper conversion into blank books, loose leaf books, and photo albums was explained by Russell along with the venture into the field of plastics with the use of radio waves to accomplish the results.

The speaker concluded his remarks with the idea that the Russell Corp. was a small concern competing with national concerns, and that it stressed progressive action based upon the idea of the company's president that "the only way you can coast is downhill."

Memorial

In loving memory of my husband Festus Yeaple who God called two years May 10, 1966. What would I give to see your smile. And sit with you and talk awhile. The blow was sudden, the shock severe. To part with you so kind and dear. Day and night I miss you so. The things you used to say and do. I'm so alone without you. YOUR LOVING WIFE LUCY Successful Investing....

by ROGER E. SPEAR
Investment Advisor & Analyst
Computer Industry Growth
Should Prove Beneficial

Q—The government department where I work replaced older equipment with recorders made by Mohawk Data Sciences. I invested in this company even though my capital is limited and I don't know much about stocks. Should I hold, buy more or switch?—E. L.

A—In your circumstances I advise retaining Mohawk for the present but not adding to it. Your company is favored by its participation in the rapidly expanding computer industry for which it supplies input devices used in data processing. Recent merger with Analex added a high-quality line of printers and other electronic equipment. Marketing base should be further strengthened by an exclusive distribution agreement with National Cash Register.

Competition, though, is keen among the suppliers to the computer industry and their stocks tend to be volatile—especially in higher-priced issues. Losses reported by Mohawk in 1965 and 1966 grew out of the Analex acquisition, but combined operations were in the black for 1967 and first-half fiscal 1968 earnings are excellent.

You have ridden out the recent decline and a more favorable market atmosphere should benefit your shares. However, believing that your future purchases should have a more conservative tone, I recommend Warner-Lambert, a broadly diversified pharmaceutical and consumer-oriented stock.

Q—Which one of these should a beginner buy for growth: Food Fair, Gerber, Great A&P, Long Island Lighting, Pan American Airways?—Y. S.

A—First, may I say that lower-priced stocks are not necessarily bargain buys. The food chains squeeze, although this shows signs of easing. Gerber from a declining birth rate and the utilities from ascending money rates. I'd rather advise paying more for an actively growing situation like Rayette-Faberge, maker of cosmetics and hair-care products, which should again this year set net sales and earnings records.

Paltz Board Creates Room For Police, Fire

Both village police and fire alarm district personnel in New Paltz will be working out of rooms created for them in the town hall.

The action was taken last night at the regular town board meeting with Supervisor Anthony Moriello presiding.

A large room in the town hall had been partitioned off for the purpose of housing the police and the fire district personnel. The rooms will be leased to the organizations.

Francis J. Connelly was appointed by Supervisor Moriello as chairman of the park board. The board has been set up for the developing of a recreation area in Route 32 north of the village.

The area rests adjacent to the town's land fill and includes 138 acres of land.

It was also announced at last night's meeting held at the town offices that Superintendent of Highways Isaac Pole has nearly completed the construction of two softball and little league ball fields in the recreation site.

In other developments, Supervisor Moriello appointed three new members to the municipal research committee, set up to study the centralization of town government.

The new committee members are Mrs. Harry Cornwell, Mrs. Katherine Scott and Town Clerk Theodore Lasher.

Saugerties Planners Okay Building Code

A recommendation that the Town of Saugerties adopt the State Building Code and an ordinance for the administration and enforcement of the code was approved at Wednesday night's Town Planning Board meeting held in Saugerties Town Hall.

The proposal was presented by the Planning Board's study committee including Planning Board Chairman Dr. Richard Messina and Vice Chairman Albert J. Cawein. The standard form code has been under study by the committee for the past two months.

The resignation of Albert V. Conte from the Planning Board was accepted with regret. Conte in his letter said his decision was regrettable and was made after considerable study. He said the demands of his business would not permit him to give full consideration to his work on the board.

The Planning Board has recommended to the Town Board that Gregory Fowler of Windmere be considered to fill the vacancy. Fowler has indicated his interest in local planning by attending each session of the board as an observer.

Conte was chairman of the board's Recreation Study Committee and this vacancy was filled with the appointment of Roy Almquist, who said he would call a meeting of the Recreation Committee for next week.

Supervisor A. Michael Schovel, who was in attendance, said the Town Board would meet in executive session this week to discuss the problem of trailers being located in the township in violation of the town's trailer ordinance.

Gerald Overbagh, president of Quarryville Civic Association, spoke to the group on the problem of old buildings and homes in his area which are becoming unsightly. He said they were unoccupied and many of them had non-resident owners.

Overbagh asked if there was some form of action by Planning Board or Town Board could take to alleviate this situation. It was pointed out by Chairman Messina that although the board sympathizes with the problem, it is not the function of the Planning Board to solve current and problems of long standing. He said, however, that the Building Code Ordinance under study makes provisions for enforcement of demolition or repair of unsightly buildings and homes.

Vernon Joe Benjamin, chairman of Saugerties Youth Council, said his organization was interested in a small portion of the newly acquired Veterans Memorial Field adjacent to Canine Field for a youth center. This matter was referred to the Recreation Study Committee of the board.

Almquist reported on town and village board sessions, and Secretary Irving Oltmann reported on the County Planning Board meeting. Oltmann is the town's representative on the County Board.

Stephen Vozdik, local realtor and builder, attended the session and asked about home developments and requirements for providing recreation areas within the developments. The Planning Board and Vozdik will make a tour of development sites Wednesday evening.

William Smith of Asbury was also an observer at the meeting.

Conservative Club Square, Round Dance

The Conservative Club of Saugerties is sponsoring a Square and Round Dance Saturday, May 11, at the VFW Hall, Livingston Street, Saugerties. The music will be provided by the Don Barringer Band beginning at 9 p.m.

Frank Greimel, club president said, "the dance committee has gone all out to make this an enjoyable and memorable evening for everyone." He also took the opportunity to invite the public to a night of music, dancing and fun.

Tickets which include refreshments may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Liz Deak, Mrs. Gloria Laird, Mrs. Shirley Breitenbach, and Mrs. Carol Stamp. Tickets will also be available at the door.

Successful Investing....

by ROGER E. SPEAR
Investment Advisor & Analyst
Computer Industry Growth Should Prove Beneficial

Q—The government department where I work replaced older equipment with recorders made by Mohawk Data Sciences. I invested in this company even though my capital is limited and I don't know much about stocks. Should I hold, buy more or switch?—E. L.

A—In your circumstances I advise retaining Mohawk for the present but not adding to it. Your company is favored by its participation in the rapidly expanding computer industry for which it supplies input devices used in data processing. Recent merger with Analex added a high-quality line of printers and other electronic equipment. Marketing base should be further strengthened by an exclusive distribution agreement with National Cash Register.

Competition, though, is keen among the suppliers to the computer industry and their stocks tend to be volatile—especially in higher-priced issues. Losses reported by Mohawk in 1965 and 1966 grew out of the Analex acquisition, but combined operations were in the black for 1967 and first-half fiscal 1968 earnings are excellent.

You have ridden out the recent decline and a more favorable market atmosphere should benefit your shares. However, believing that your future purchases should have a more conservative tone, I recommend Warner-Lambert, a broadly diversified pharmaceutical and consumer-oriented stock.

Q—Which one of these should a beginner buy for growth: Food Fair, Gerber, Great A&P, Long Island Lighting, Pan American Airways?—Y. S.

Paltz Board Creates Room For Police, Fire

Both village police and fire alarm district personnel in New Paltz will be working out of rooms created for them in the town hall.

The action was taken last night at the regular town board meeting with Supervisor Anthony Moriello presiding.

A large room in the town hall had been partitioned off for the purpose of housing the police and the fire district personnel. The rooms will be leased to the organizations.

Francis J. Connelly was appointed by Supervisor Moriello as chairman of the park board. The board has been set up for the developing of a recreation area in Route 32 north of the village.

The area rests adjacent to the town's land fill and includes 138 acres of land.

It was also announced at last night's meeting held at the town offices that Superintendent of Highways Isaac Pole has nearly completed the construction of two softball and little league ball fields in the recreation site.

In other developments, Supervisor Moriello appointed three new members to the municipal research committee, set up to study the centralization of town government.

The new committee members are Mrs. Harry Cornwell, Mrs. Katherine Scott and Town Clerk Theodore Lasher.

Penn-Dixie Report

Penn-Dixie Cement Corporation has announced a decrease of 18 per cent in its seasonal loss despite the inclusion of similar seasonal losses in newly-acquired subsidiaries purchased after the first quarter of 1967.

Jerome Castle, president, stated that the first quarter statement reflects improved results in the cement division and the consolidation of acquisitions which were made in 1967. Sales are presently running at an annual rate in excess of $100 million. "Net income for 1968 should be sharply higher than our reported net income last year," Castle said. "We are presently in negotiation to acquire certain corporations highly compatible with our present structure. If we are successful in completing certain of these negotiations these will add further to our overall picture in 1968."

Tips From the Experts: Fix Up That Old Home

By ANDY LANG

Every once in awhile you hear or read about an individual who makes a good income by buying old houses and selling them without ever living in any of them.

Inevitably, you will find that this person prepares a house for sale; that is, he doesn't sell it in the same condition in which he found it. In fact, he doesn't even buy a house in good shape. He knows from experience that, by spending $2,000 or $3,000 in fixing up a house that he purchased at a bargain price, he can make a profit two or three times that amount.

The most important part of his expenditure, but not necessarily the largest, involves painting, either inside or out, or when necessary, both. Here again he knows from experience that a prospective purchaser likes a clean-appearing house and will often overlook certain obvious faults if the house looks nice. And nothing places it in that category more than paint.

Why is it, then, that so many people place their homes on the market without giving a thought to dressing them up? Real estate brokers tell us that, on the contrary, a homeowner is likely to let a place run down as soon as he decides that he may sell the house in the ensuing year or two. This line of reasoning makes it far more difficult to sell the house and, even more important, results in a lower sale price.

First impressions play a vital role in home sales. A buyer brought to a house by a real estate broker is likely to reject it mentally before he even goes inside if his first glance shows the exterior greatly in need of a paint job. Yet the sale might have been made if the owner had spent a few hundred dollars on painting the exterior.

The Internal Revenue Service gives a tax break to a homeowner who paints a house specifically for the purpose of selling it. Since the details of this tax benefit are a little complicated in certain cases, get your local income tax office to advise you whether it will apply in your situation. But generally, if the painting is done to make the house attractive for sale—and within a reasonable period of time before the sale—you can add the cost of the painting to what are called "fix-up expenses" when tax time rolls around.

Painting a house before selling it thus brings three advantages—a quicker sale, a better price and a tax write-off.

No Indictment

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A County grand jury refused Thursday to indict Jeannie M. Green, 25, of Albany, who had been charged with murder in the stabbing of a 32-year-old man.

Thurmon Campbell, also of Albany, died March 30. Police said he and the woman had struggled at Campbell's apartment.

Tri-Level Homes Show Versatility

By JACK McEENEY

As the years go by more than average prospective homeowners select a tri-level dwelling as their permanent home. Their choice is a well deserved tribute to a method of home construction that has proven to have great versatile value. A good example of just how efficient the split levels can be is demonstrated today in "The Altrue."

Spacious living areas are offered on each level and none suffers from the burden of heavy traffic, thanks to the wide foyer hall from the front entrance to the kitchen and stairs that lead to the rest area. While it draws charm from the large picture bow window and fireplace, the living room possesses its own distinction. It is true that a tri-level will cost slightly more than the standard rectangular house of similar size. However, the tri-level in effect offers a lot more living area by lifting one-half of the basement out of the ground and making it available to fit a particular need—a factor that gives the tri-level the edge on other types of dwellings.

"The Altrue" features brick or stone front at the living room area which continues down around the garage doors. The area over the garages shows stock cedar shingles which are also used on the sides and rear. This dwelling contains 1,590 square feet of living space, and the overall dimensions, including the extra garage, are 67

Help on Painting Over Wallpaper

Question: I am planning to paint over the wallpaper in our living room. I want to use a no-drip paint, but someone told me it is too heavy and might pull the paper from the wall. Is this right?

Answer: If the paper is solidly attached to the wall, you can safely use a no-drip paint. In fact, if it isn't solidly attached, better not paint at all until you remove it.

Most of the time wallpaper adheres in most places, but there may be a spot here and there where it doesn't stick or where there is a bubble. In that event, split the paper with a blade or sharp knife and apply paste on the wall, being careful not to get any on the surface of the paper. Press the paper to the wall, wait a couple of hours, then go ahead and paint.

You can get Andy Lang's helpful booklet, "Paint Your House Inside and Out," by sending 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N. Y. 11743.

Tips From the Experts: Fix Up That Old Home

By ANDY LANG

Every once in awhile you hear or read about an individual who makes a good income by buying old houses and selling them without ever living in any of them.

Inevitably, you will find that this person prepares a house for sale; that is, he doesn't sell it in the same condition in which he found it. In fact, he doesn't even buy a house in good shape. He knows from experience that, by spending $2,000 or $3,000 in fixing up a house that he purchased at a bargain price, he can make a profit two or three times that amount.

The most important part of his expenditure, but not necessarily the largest, involves repainting, either inside or out or when necessary, both. Here again he knows from experience that a prospective purchaser likes a clean-appearing house and will often overlook certain obvious faults if the house looks nice. And nothing places it in that category more than paint.

Why is it, then, that so many people place their homes on the market without giving a thought to dressing them up? Real estate brokers tell us that, on the contrary, a homeowner is likely to let a place run down as soon as he decides that he may sell the house in the ensuing year or two. This line of reasoning makes it far more difficult to sell the house and, even more important, results in a lower sale price.

First impressions play a vital role in home sales. A buyer brought to a house by a real estate broker is likely to reject it mentally before he even goes inside if his first glance shows the exterior greatly in need of a paint job. Yet the sale might have been made if the owner had spent a few hundred dollars on painting the exterior.

The Internal Revenue Service gives a tax break to a homeowner who paints a house specifically for the purpose of selling it. Since the details of this tax benefit are a little complicated in certain cases, get your local income tax office to advise you whether it will apply in your situation. But generally, if the painting is done to make the house attractive for sale—and within a reasonable period of time before the sale—you can add the cost of the painting to what are called "fix-up expenses" when tax time rolls around.

Painting a house before selling it thus brings three advantages—a quicker sale, a better price and a tax write-off.

No Indictment

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A County grand jury refused Thursday to indict Jeannie M. Green, 25, of Albany, who had been charged with murder in the stabbing of a 32-year-old man.

Thurmon Campbell, also of Albany, died March 30. Police said he and the woman had struggled at Campbell's apartment.

Tri-Level Homes Show Versatility

By JACK McELENENY

As the years go by more than average prospective homeowners select a tri-level dwelling as their permanent home. Their choice is a well deserved tribute to a method of home construction that has proven to have great versatile value. A good example of just how efficient the split levels can be is demonstrated today in "The Altrue."

Spacious living areas are offered on each level and none suffers from the burden of heavy traffic, thanks to the wide foyer hall from the front entrance to the kitchen and stairs that lead to the rest area. While it draws charm from the large picture bow window and fireplace, the living room possesses its own distinction. It is true that a tri-level will cost slightly more than the standard rectangular house of similar size. However, the tri-level in effect offers a lot more living area by lifting one-half of the basement out of the ground and making it available to fit a particular need—a factor that gives the tri-level the edge on other types of dwellings.

"The Altrue" features brick or stone front at the living room area which continues down around the garage doors. The area over the garages shows stock cedar shingles which are also used on the sides and rear. This dwelling contains 1,590 square feet of living space, and the overall dimensions, including the extra garage, are 67

Help on Painting Over Wallpaper

Question: I am planning to paint over the wallpaper in our living room. I want to use a no-drip paint, but someone told me it is too heavy and might pull the paper from the wall. Is this right?

Answer: If the paper is solidly attached to the wall, you can safely use a no-drip paint. In fact, if it isn't solidly attached, better not paint at all until you remove it.

Most of the time wallpaper adheres in most places, but there may be a spot here and there where it doesn't stick or where there is a bubble. In that event, split the paper with a blade or sharp knife and apply paste on the wall, being careful not to get any on the surface of the paper. Press the paper to the wall, wait a couple of hours, then go ahead and paint.

You can get Andy Lang's helpful booklet, "Paint Your House Inside and Out," by sending 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N. Y. 11743.

Garden Hose Will Last With the Proper Care

By MR. FIX

It's amazing that people buy new garden hose as often as they do. With care and a few simple repairs a hose will last almost indefinitely if it's a good one to begin with.

Most hoses die from abuse. You can't drive over one with an automobile for very long without ruining it. Turning the water off at the nozzle while the water supply remains on at the faucet end and leaving it this way for any length of time is another way to shorten its life. Leave it out in the hot sun when it's not in use and the water in it will boil. Some hoses are designed to be used with hot water. A garden hose is not.

Hoses are ruined by dragging them over paved areas, a sure way to wear away the covering material. Brass ends that are dragged around that way will soon have damaged threads.

Keep hoses neatly coiled and hung up. Keep them clean. Drain them when not in use.

Should a leak develop, repair it quickly. Tiny holes in a rubber hose can be patched with plastic rubber or a tire tube patch. In the latter case you will have to roughen the surface and vulcanize the patch.

Tiny holes in a plastic hose can be touched up with a hot, clean tip of a soldering iron. Enough plastic will melt to fill the pinhole.

Larger leaks can best be repaired with hose members. This also is the best way to be sure of a good repair for small leaks as well.

The hose is cut at the bad point and the section of the hose that is affected is cut away. Then the two ends of the hose are rejoined with a mender which you can buy in any hardware store.

For a rubber hose the mender consists of a brass tube with a double set of cleats in the middle. With the hose held together by the tube, the cleats are then hammered down into the hose.

Plastic hoses are mended with a compression mender. The tube expands inside the hose as an outer part is tightened. When mending a plastic hose, dip the end in hot water. This makes it soft and easier to mend.

New couplings are not expensive. They can be used to replace old couplings or to serve in place of the previously mentioned menders.

Couplings for rubber hose are held in place with cleats. New couplings for plastic hoses consist of an inner sleeve that expands when tightened by holding the hose firmly against the coupling. Again, dip the end of the hose in hot water.

Replace washers in hose couplings and nozzles frequently. Do this automatically at the beginning of the summer. Keep extras on hand.

Look for burrs or rough spots on the sill cock threads if leaks persist at the supply end even after new washers are installed. Touching up with a fine file will cure this condition.

Plastic hose is subject to kinking, especially if left out in cool weather. Dip kinks in hot water and gently straighten by kneading with your hands.

Advice on Concrete

By ANDY LANG

Question: I recently read about using a pre-mixed concrete for a patching job. But I have a big concrete project to do and have found that it would be too costly to use a pre-mixed product.

Can you tell me how much sand, gravel and cement to use to make a pavement in front of my house?

Answer: Generally, it is recommended that a pavement mixture be one part cement, 2 1/2 parts of sand and two parts of gravel. The most important thing, however, is to use the right amount of water. Too much will weaken the mixture; too little will prevent proper spreading.

While the correct amount of water is six gallons to a large standard bag of cement, this may have to be reduced if the sand your purchase is wet, as it sometimes is. Pour out the right amount of sand; then add the cement, mixing the two very thoroughly. Then add the gravel, again mixing so that all the ingredients appear to be uniformly distributed.

Make a large valley in the pile and add water, shoveling the dry part from the outside edges into the center. When the water has taken hold, mix everything completely until the mixture appears to be workable—neither too watery nor too sandy.

Green tea is unfermented; black tea is fermented.

LBJ Seeks Anticrime Bill Enactment

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson urged the Senate Thursday to enact promptly his anticrime bill, including a tough gun control law.
 In a strongly worded letter to Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, the President asked: "What in the name of conscience will it take to pass a truly effective gun control law?"

Has not the high-powered mail order rifle brought tragedy enough to America?"

In urging rapid Senate passage of the crime bill, Johnson said: "The mugger and the murderer will not wait—neither must we."

Mansfield read the President's letter to the Senate and added a plea of his own that the Senate "get down to brass tacks" and move the bill. Senate consideration of the measure, now in its second week, so far has involved "nothing but conversation," Mansfield said.

 Johnson made no reference to a charge this week by former Vice President Richard M. Nixon that the administration was "lame and ineffectual" in attacking the national crime problem.

But the President pointed out that 15 months ago he had urged Congress to undertake an immediate, massive effort to improve local law enforcement. The bill being debated in the Senate contains an omnibus safe streets program designed to provide federal help in improving local and state law-enforcement facilities.

Will Award Project Bids For Rosendale

The awarding of bids on the Rosendale Flood Control project are expected momentarily, according to Warren Larabee, Flood Control Committee chairman who added that he expects work on the site will commence in three or four weeks.

Specifications for bids were sent out some time ago and bids have been received and are in the hands of New York office of the Army Corps of Engineers. Meanwhile State Commerce Commissioner William E. Zimmerman said earlier this week that federal funds proposed by the administration for public works projects in New York State were inadequate. Rosendale and North and South Ellen-ville are among the flood control projects included.
 He urged the House Appropriations Committee Tuesday to approve budget recommendations for eight flood control projects.

Will Become Campus
 ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The former Van Curler Hotel and land adjoining it will become the permanent campus of the Schenectady County Community College, scheduled to open in the fall of 1969.

The Board of Trustees of the State University approved the site Thursday, on the condition that land adjacent to the six-story building be improved.

The Mohawk River flows past the site, and $500,000 was budgeted to fill in land so that it would be above the flood-water level of the river.

The bankrupt Van Curler Hotel Corp. closed the 44-year-old hotel last February.

Approximately 1,100 full-time students will attend the college.

LBJ Seeks Anticrime Bill Enactment
WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson urged the Senate Thursday to enact promptly his anticrime bill, including a tough gun control law.
In a strongly worded letter to Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, the President asked: "What in the name of conscience will it take to pass a truly effective gun control law? Has not the high-powered mail order rifle brought tragedy enough to America?"
In urging rapid Senate passage of the crime bill, Johnson said: "The mugger and the murderer will not wait—neither must we."
Mansfield read the President's letter to the Senate and added a plea of his own that the Senate "get down to brass tacks" and move the bill. Senate consideration of the measure, now in its second week, so far has involved "nothing but conversation," Mansfield said.
Johnson made no reference to a charge this week by former Vice President Richard M. Nixon that the administration was "lame and ineffectual" in attacking the national crime problem.
But the President pointed out that 15 months ago he had urged Congress to undertake an immediate, massive effort to improve local law enforcement.

New Film Company Is Instant Success

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The international headquarters of the new "instant major" is an unpretentious office above the studio where Joey Bishop tapes his nightly show.

"Instant major" is a newly coined term for a film company that seemingly overnight has approached the status of major studio. The term has been applied to Selmur Productions, the feature-picture enterprise of American Broadcasting Companies. Within 18 months, the firm has organized a film program that rivals those of the long-established studios.

The man behind Selmur is Selig J. Seligman, who runs the company from the Vine Street office. Seated behind a desk shaped like half a doughnut, he directs activities of film companies in Rome, London or the South Pacific. When he can't get things done on the phone, he hops a plane.

Not Much Fun

"I've made four trips to Europe since the company started, and 13 trips to New York," he reports, "and that's not much fun for a guy who hates to fly."

But the other aspects of his job obviously bring him enjoyment. Seligman is a chunky, outgoing man whose enthusiasm is contagious, and he has infused the infant company with a special kind of drive. That has resulted in the following product:

Released—"Smashing Time," with Lynn Redgrave, Rita Tushingham; "A Minute to Pray, A Second to Die," with Alec Cord, Robert Ryan, both coproductions with Carlo Ponti.

Completed—"Candy," with Richard Burton, Marlon Brando, James Coburn, et al; "Charly," with Cliff Robertson, Claire Bloom; "Hell in the Pacific," with Lee Marvin, Toshio Mifune; "Cop-Out," with James

Mason, Geraldine Chaplin; "The Rover," with Anthony Quinn, Rita Hayworth; "Diamonds for Breakfast," with Marcello Mastroianni; "The High Commissioner," with Rod Taylor, Christopher Plummer; "Filming—The Midas Run," with Richard Crenna, Fred Astaire.

ABC leaped into feature film at about the same time as CBS (Except for the backing of Bob Hope movies, NBC has not yet entered the field). The general feeling in the trade has been that the two networks were hoping to replenish the fast-depleting supply of features to show on television.

Gordon Stulberg, head of the CBS films operation, has denied this, declaring that features represented a promising field of diversification for the network. Seligman made similar claims.

"The No. 1 reason for going into features is that ABC has a major circuit of theaters (the Paramount group)," he explained. "Many of our top executives came up through the ranks as theater operators, and they were long aware of the need for more product."

"And of course, we are also a television network. The fact that the features we made would eventually have a release on TV provided an economic stopgap. That was the frosting on the cake, but not the major factor."

"Making features seemed like a sensible diversification for ABC. The management has looked into areas for expansion where the company has particular know-how. And since ABC owns theaters, a television network and record company, it was a sensible thing to make features."

Sensible Choice

And Selig Seligman appeared to be a sensible choice to head the new operation. He brought with him the experience of running a theater chain, the North Division of Paramount in Ohio and Kentucky; a television station, KABC, Los Angeles; a television film operation, Selmur Productions, which produced "Combat," "Garrison's Gorillas," "General Hospital," "Shindig," etc.

He has two other aspects to aid in a feature film company. He knows stories, having authored two novels, "Honey on the Hill" and "Marquee." And he is an attorney, Harvard, cum laude; Nuremberg trials; State Department, and hence can understand the complicated deals demanded by movie talent nowadays.

Seligman feels that Selmur can offer special inducements to the top creators.

"The best talent has a going price, and they can get it with any company," he reasoned. "But I think we can make it more attractive for the talent by offering them more freedom. We're inclined to be daring and flexible; we have no doctrines, no lawyers of echelons for decision making. We'll take a flier on something that seems worth the chance."

Selmur's biggest flier to date has been "Candy," the pornographic spoof novel that most people thought couldn't be filmed.

Jerry Lewis Survives Television Season

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The submergence of ego is not an easy thing for an actor, especially if he is also a comedian. Jerry Lewis played down Jerry Lewis on television this season and has survived to shine another year.

Last year's announcement that the comedian would star in an hour-long variety show on NBC was greeted with groans by the sharpies on the television screen. They recalled Jerry's fiasco in attempting a two-hour Saturday night show on ABC and they predicted that he lacked the discipline to survive in a variety hour.

Warrants Renewal

Jerry survived. While his show didn't light up the ratings, it did sufficiently well to warrant renewal by NBC for 1968-69. How did he manage?

"I put my faith in Bob Finkel, the producer," he explains. "He did a job on me psychologically that was something amazing."

"At the very outset, he said: 'Do me a favor—you make the funny faces, help write the material and let me do the rest.' Well, I had faith in him."

"So I let him call the shots, and one of the things he wanted was that we would never let Jerry prevail. I never emerged as myself, except when I said goodnight. The rest of the time I was playing characters."

Another Finkel edict: Don't look at the ratings. The producer said, "Do yourself a favor and don't worry when the show is up or down. I'll tell you when the show is good; that's all you need to know."

Lewis admitted that he had to discipline himself to follow Finkel's instructions. "It's just as well that I didn't try to keep up with the ratings, because I would have only become confused," he said. "I still don't understand how they can decide programming on what is being watched in 1,200 homes. But I suppose they know what they're doing."

The comedian admitted that he had certain frustrations, many stemming from the nature of the television medium. In his movie career he strives for perfection, handcrafting every script, overseeing every production detail, often directing himself. He employs an elaborate video tape system so he can review each scene immediately after it is filmed.

Making Movies

Having completed his first season, Lewis is back making movies. His new one is "Hook, Line and Sinker" for Columbia.

Next season he will be displaying more of the Jerry Lewis character on his show, which will be scheduled a half-hour earlier. He explained: "NBC research says that 87 per cent of our audience is between 6 and 26, so it makes sense to start at 7:30 when the younger crowd is watching."

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Pack 75

New Paltz Cub Pack 75 met in the Central School cafeteria recently for its April get-together.

Several skits were presented within the cub "Keep America Beautiful" April theme. The first skit was presented by Den 3, "The well groomed young American," a takeoff on the conservation of a hippie to a neat, old-fashioned American boy.

The second skit was given by Den 1 and was called "The Litterbug." The third short play was called "The scouts outscout the scouts," and was given by Den 5.

It was emphasized that Gerald Wager received a bear badge and a gold arrow which he received at the blue and gold dinner.

April's bobcat pin was presented to Timothy Wurtz, and a wolf badge to Mark A. Van Nostrand. Ronald Wager received two silver arrows under wolf and Thomas Bostrop earned his bear badge.

Gerald Wager, making the news again, got two silver arrows under bear.

In the Webelos den, James Diven, Mark Eulie, Andrew Hasbrouck, David King, and Jerry Marks all received their athlete's awards with Mark Eulie and Peter Ferrante earning the aquanaut award, John Cotter Jr. and Arthur Hasbrouck getting their geologists awards, with the showman pin given to Mark Eulie and an engineers badge to Peter Ferrante.

Peter also earned a naturalist badge.

A citizen pin was given to Andrew Hasbrouck and an outdoorsman pin to David King. Denner strips were presented to John Clark of Den 5 and to Frank Tamburello of Den 1.

An assistant denner strip was given to Eric Van Meter for Den 5.

Seven year pins were given to the following boys: Paul Baumgartner, Jeffrey Decker, Richard Kowalski, Keith Schiller, Eric Van Heter, Stephen Whitton, and Edward Wood.

Two boys were advanced to webelos from cubs, Jeffrey Decker from den 5 and Gerald Wager from den 1.

The next meeting of Pack 75 will be held on May 23, at the Duzine School.

Litter Sleuth

NEW YORK (AP) — Litterbug detection is a growing branch of police work.

Police, sheriffs, health officers and others associated with litter prevention have found a number of ways of detecting the unseen litterbug particularly the large-scale litterer who dumps bundles or even truckloads of trash along roadsides.

Police officers examine such litter carefully for identifying evidence. They often find a clue. It may be a letter addressed to the offender, an old bill, rent receipt, bank statement or a magazine or newspaper to which the offender subscribes.

In California recently a department store label on a carton eventually led police to a major litter offender.

Keep America Beautiful reports another willful litterbug deliberately cut all the names and addresses off trash he planned to junk along the highway, but forgot about a medicine bottle. The police traced him through the prescription number on the label!

Calves Are Killed

SITTEN, Switzerland (UPI) — More than 130 calves died Thursday when a fire raged through a breeding farm near Sitten, police said.

Sawkill Troop 8

Boy Scouts of Troop 8, Sawkill, recently observed the second anniversary of the Troop with a Court of Honor, and Parents Night. Scoutmaster Frank McMahon spoke of the progress of the troop since its organization two years ago, and of the many camp outs, hikes and contests in which the boys had participated.

He also announced that the troop would attend the Rip Van Winkle Council Camporee at Camp Trimount in May.

Assistant Scoutmaster Bruce Winchell presented the first class badge to Robert Ferrigan, and the second class badge to Kevi McColgan. Robert Ferrigan was also awarded the railroad merit badge and John Dolan received the fireman-ship merit badge.

Service stars presented were: 4 years—John Walker; 3 years—Brett Naccarato; 2 years—Dennis Dye, Jeff Longendyke, Robert Ferrigan, William McGinnis, and Ralph Longendyke; 1 year, Richard Buser, James Reedy and John Dolan.

Two-year attendance pins were presented to Dennis Dye, Brett Naccarato, Jeff Longendyke, Robert Ferrigan, William McGinnis and Ralph Longendyke. John Dolan received a one year attendance pin.

Refreshments were served by the scout mothers following the meeting.

New Film Company Is Instant Success

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The international headquarters of the new "instant major" is an unpretentious office above the studio where Joey Bishop tapes his nightly show.

"Instant major" is a newly coined term for a film company that seemingly overnight has approached the status of major studio. The term has been applied to Selmur Productions, the feature-picture enterprise of American Broadcasting Companies. Within 18 months, the firm has organized a film program that rivals those of the long-established studios.

The man behind Selmur is Selig J. Seligman, who runs the company from the Vine Street office. Seated behind a desk shaped like half a doughnut, he directs activities of film companies in Rome, London or the South Pacific. When he can't get things done on the phone, he hops a plane.

Not Much Fun

"I've made four trips to Europe since the company started, and 13 trips to New York," he reports, "and that's not much fun for a guy who hates to fly."

But the other aspects of his job obviously bring him enjoyment. Seligman is a chunky, outgoing man whose enthusiasm is contagious, and he has infused the infant company with a special kind of drive. That has resulted in the following product:

Released — "Smashing Time," with Lynn Redgrave, Rita Tushingham; "A Minute to Pray, A Second to Die," with Alec Cord, Robert Ryan, both coproductions with Carlo Ponti.

Mason, Geraldine Chaplin; "The Rover," with Anthony Quinn, Rita Hayworth; "Diamonds for Breakfast," with Marcello Mastroianni; "The High Commissioner," with Rod Taylor, Christopher Plummer. Filming — "The Midas Run," with Richard Crenna, Fred Astaire.

ABC leaped into feature film at about the same time as CBS (Except for the backing of Bob Hope movies, NBC has not yet entered the field). The general feeling in the trade has been that the two networks were hoping to replenish the fast-depleting supply of features to show on television.

Gordon Stulberg, head of the CBS films operation, has denied this, declaring that features represented a promising field of diversification for the network. Seligman made similar claims.

"The No. 1 reason for going into features is that ABC has a major circuit of theaters (the Paramount group)," he explained. "Many of our top executives came up through the ranks as theater operators, and they were long aware of the need for more product."

"And of course, we are also a television network. The fact that the features we made would eventually have a release on TV provided an economic stopgap. That was the frosting on the cake, but not the major factor."

"Making features seemed like a sensible diversification for ABC. The management has looked into areas for expansion where the company has particular know-how. And since ABC owns theaters, a television network and record company, it was a sensible thing to make features."

Sensible Choice

And Selig Seligman appeared to be a sensible choice to head the new operation. He brought with him the experience of running a theater chain, the North Division of Paramount in Ohio and Kentucky; a television station, KABC, Los Angeles; a television film operation, Selmur Productions, which produced "Combat," "Garrison's Gorillas," "General Hospital," "Shindig," etc.

He has two other aspects to aid in a feature film company. He knows stories, having authored two novels, "Honey on the Hill" and "Marquee." And he is an attorney, Harvard, cum laude; Nuremberg trials; State Department, and hence can understand the complicated deals demanded by movie talent nowadays.

Seligman feels that Selmur can offer special inducements to the top creators.

"The best talent has a going price, and they can get it with any company," he reasoned. "But I think we can make it more attractive for the talent by offering them more freedom. We're inclined to be daring and flexible; we have no doctrines, no lawyers of echelons for decision making. We'll take a flier on something that seems worth the chance."

Selmur's biggest flier to date has been "Candy," the pornographic spoof novel that most people thought couldn't be filmed.

Jerry Lewis Survives Television Season

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The submergence of ego is not an easy thing for an actor, especially if he is also a comedian. Jerry Lewis played down Jerry Lewis on television this season and has survived to shine another year.

Last year's announcement that the comedian would star in an hour-long variety show on NBC was greeted with groans by the sharpies on the television screen. They recalled Jerry's fiasco in attempting a two-hour Saturday night show on ABC and they predicted that he lacked the discipline to survive in a variety hour.

Warrants Renewal

Jerry survived. While his show didn't light up the ratings, it did sufficiently well to warrant renewal by NBC for 1968-69. How did he manage?

"I put my faith in Bob Finkel, the producer," he explains. "He did a job on me psychologically that was something amazing."

"At the very outset, he said: 'Do me a favor—you make the funny faces, help write the material and let me do the rest. Well, I had faith in him.'"

"So I let him call the shots, and one of the things he wanted was that we would never let Jerry prevail. I never emerged as myself, except when I said goodnight. The rest of the time I was playing characters."

Another Finkel edict: Don't look at the ratings. The producer said, "Do yourself a favor and don't worry when the show is up or down. I'll tell you when the show is good; that's all you need to know."

Lewis admitted that he had to discipline himself to follow Finkel's instructions. "It's just as well that I didn't try to keep up with the ratings, because I would have only become confused," he said. "I still don't understand how they can decide programming on what is being watched in 1,200 homes. But I suppose they know what they're doing."

The comedian admitted that he had certain frustrations, many stemming from the nature of the television medium. In his movie career he strives for perfection, handcrafting every script, overseeing every production detail, often directing himself. He employs an elaborate video tape system so he can review each scene immediately after it is filmed.

Making Movies

Having completed his first season, Lewis is back making movies. His new one is "Hook, Line and Sinker" for Columbia. Next season he will be displaying more of the Jerry Lewis character on his show, which will be scheduled a half-hour earlier. He explained: "NBC research says that 87 per cent of our audience is between 6 and 26, so it makes sense to start at 7:30 when the younger crowd is watching."

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Pack 75

New Paltz Cub Pack 75 met in the Central School cafeteria recently for its April get-together.

Several skits were presented within the cub "Keep America Beautiful" April theme. The first skit was presented by Den 3, "The well groomed young American," a takeoff on the conservation of a hippie to a neat, old-fashioned American boy.

The second skit was given by Den 1 and was called "The Litterbug." The third short play was called "The scouts outscout the scouts," and was given by Den 5.

It was emphasized that Gerald Wagers received a bear badge and a gold arrow which he received at the blue and gold dinner.

April's bobcat pin was presented to Timothy Wurtz, a wolf badge to Mark A. Van Nostrand. Ronald Wager received two silver arrows under wolf and Thomas Bostrop earned his bear badge.

Gerald Wager, making the news again, got two silver arrows under bear. In the Webelos den, James Diven, Mark Eulie, Andrew Hasbrouck, David King, and Jerry Marks all received their athlete's awards with Mark Eulie and Peter Ferrante earning the aquanaut award, John Cotter Jr. and Arthur Hasbrouck getting their geologists awards, with the showman pin given to Mark Eulie and an engineers badge to Peter Ferrante.

Peter also earned a naturalist badge. A citizen pin was given to Andrew Hasbrouck and an outdoorsman pin to David King. Denner strips were presented to John Clark of Den 5 and to Frank Tamburello of Den 1.

An assistant dinner strip was given to Eric Van Meter for Den 5.

Seven year pins were given to the following boys: Paul Baumgartner, Jeffrey Decker, Richard Kowalski, Keith Schiller, Eric Van Heter, Stephen Whitton, and Edward Wood.

Two boys were advanced to webelos from cubs, Jeffrey Decker from den 5 and Gerald Wager from den 1.

The next meeting of Pack 75 will be held on May 23, at the Duzine School.

Parley on Poison

HONOLULU (AP) — Three University of Hawaii scientists will attend an international conference on toxic fish in French Polynesia this summer. The conference, to be held Aug. 19 to Aug. 23 on Rangiroa Atoll in the Tuamotu archipelago of French Polynesia is sponsored by the government of French Polynesia and the South Pacific Commission, an international agency headquartered in Noumea, New Caledonia.

The Hawaii delegates will present a report on tests of ciguatera toxin, the most common type of fish poison.

Litter Sleuth

NEW YORK (AP) — Litterbug detection is a growing branch of police work.

Police, sheriffs, health officers and others associated with litter prevention have found a number of ways of detecting the unseen litterbug particularly the large-scale litterer who dumps bundles or even truckloads of trash along roadsides.

Police officers examine such litter carefully for identifying evidence. They often find a clue. It may be a letter addressed to the offender, an old bill, rent receipt, bank statement or a magazine or newspaper to which the offender subscribes.

In California recently a department store label on a carton eventually led police to a major litter offender.

Keep America Beautiful reports another willful litterbug deliberately cut all the names and addresses off trash he planned to junk along the highway, but forgot about a medicine bottle. The police traced him through the prescription number on the label!

Calves Are Killed

Historic Homes Face Demolition in Dutchess

By LYNN MULVANEY

Is a new highway cloverleaf preferable to the preservation of two pre-Revolutionary War houses, one the home of the first U. S. Supreme Court Justice, John Jay?

Can the practical aspects of the state's highway expansion outweigh the historic, aesthetic sentiment of the people?

Historians, architects and other interested Dutchess County residents claim the state, which wishes to demolish two homes near Fishkill in order to construct a highway cloverleaf, "seems to take more pride in bulldozing houses than in saving them."

One of the two sites involved is the Van Wyck-Jay house between Interstate Highway 84 and State Route 52.

The Revolutionary home of John Jay, confidant of George Washington, its architecture is Dutch colonial and it was built in 1740 by Theodorus Van Wyck.

Three miles away at Fishkill's intersection of Rt. 9 and the Interstate Highway is the Van Wyck-Wharton house built in 1732 by the brother of John Jay, Cornelius Van Wyck. Also of Dutch colonial architecture, it was the setting for a number of stories by James Fenimore Cooper.

Stress Importance

Both the East Fishkill and Fishkill Historical Societies and Professor Richard B. Morris, a member of the Columbia University History Department have stressed the historical importance of the two homes.

The state's engineers however claim that the property is needed for a cloverleaf essential to the handling of traffic growing out of an IBM plant and from the Dutchess Turnpike that the state is about to construct northward from Interstate 84.

It is also needed, they say, because of the projected R. H. Macy and Sears Shopping areas and the already built Holiday Inn and redevelopment of Rt. 9.

Neither the state's transportation department or the nearby historical societies has the money to move the houses to another site according to Mrs. Jack Finkel, former president of the East Fishkill Historical Society.

It had also hoped that the N. Y. Historic Trust would be able to provide funds but to date only the Van Wyck-Wharton house has been officially declared as having historic significance.

Of the Van-Wyck-Jay house, Mrs. Finkel says Columbia has documented its authenticity.

She has also written to William G. Tyrell of the trust saying "We are dismayed. Could not the Van Wyck-Jay house be given recognition as to historic significance, even though it does not qualify as to architectural integrity?"

Speaking of the property, which was raided by Tory marauders, she asks that if the big barn and other outbuildings are razed, their hand-hewn timbers, some of them 60 feet long, be used for a much needed public library in town, adding that IBM might give financial aid.

The Van Wyck-Jay house is said to be characteristic of the mid-eighteenth century frame houses of southern Dutchess County. It was one and one-half stories in height, with a single-slant roof, two chimneys, center hall and it faced south with a wing at the west end. In 1870 Van Wyck carried the building up to a two-story height and now it has the appearance of a mid-nineteenth century home.

Its importance however lies in its former inhabitants rather than its architecture.

According to historians, just before the war swept into Dutchess County, Theodorus Van Wyck died after having served as delegate from the county to the Second Provincial Congress in New York City.

It was then that John Jay, his parents, children and his brother came from Westchester to Dutchess for safety from the British occupation of New York City. He sought and found haven at the Van Wyck place.

The Van Wyck-Wharton place, although built just at the close of the Revolution, is typical of the pre-war period. It is a story and a half in height with a gambrel roof and it still has its original paneled shutters.

Behind the house are original frame outbuildings and a stone smokehouse. The family burial ground for the Van Wycks is nearby, surrounded by a stone wall.

Thousands Bid Lurleen Farewell

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—Mourners by the thousands gathered in the hot sun on a cemetery hilltop overlooking nearby pastures Thursday to pay their final respects to Gov. Lurleen Burns Wallace.

Five Air National Guard jets flew overhead as graveside ceremonies began and one peeled off, leaving a symbolic empty spot in the formation.

After a eulogy by the Rev. John E. Vickers and a prayer by Methodist Bishop Kenneth Goodson, eight national guardsmen removed the red and white stage flag from the casket, folded it and presented it to former Gov. George Wallace with a salute.

Wallace, red-eyed and worn looking, left quickly with the three eldest of his four children. Seven-year-old Janie Lee Wallace did not attend the funeral. Earlier in services attended by more than 600 at St. James Methodist Church, Vickers said Mrs. Wallace had made plans for the funeral and had asked that two poems be read.

One, by an unknown author, began "I love you not only for what you are but for what I am when I am with you."

The second, a sonnet by Elizabeth Barrett Browning, ended with the words "... and if God choose, I shall but love thee better after death."

Hairy Story

LONDON (UPI)—The Labor Exchange has stopped unemployment payments to 23-year-old Karl Taylor because it claims he could get a job if he would only cut his shoulder-length hair.

Van Wyck Jay House

The Jay house was built in 1740 by Judge Theodorus Van Wyck. It was the home of John Jay, first Chief Justice of the United States whose official home is a state-owned site in Katonah, Westchester County. This Dutchess County house, pictured, has been altered and converted into apartments. Dutch Colonial in architecture, its authenticity has been documented by Columbia University. Its importance perhaps lies in its former inhabitants rather than in its architecture for John Jay was a confidant of George Washington and Theodorus Van Wyck served as delegate from the county to the Second Provincial Congress in New York City. The house is said to be characteristic of the mid-eighteenth century frame houses of southern Dutchess County. Originally a story and a half in height with a single-slant roof, two chimneys and a center hall, it was enlarged to two stories in 1870 and took on the appearance of a nineteenth century home. It was the home of John Jay, first Chief Justice of the United States whose official home is a state-owned site in Katonah, Westchester County. This Dutchess County house, pictured, has been altered and converted into apartments. Dutch Colonial architecture, its authenticity has been documented by Columbia University. Its importance perhaps lies in its former inhabitants rather than in its architecture for John Jay was a confidant of George Washington and Theodorius Van Wyck served as delegate from the county to the Second Provincial Congress in New York City. The house is said to be characteristic of the mid-eighteenth century frame houses of southern Dutchess County. Originally a story and a half in height with a single-slant roof, two chimneys and a center hall, it was enlarged to two stories in 1870 and took on the appearance of a nineteenth century home. The Mature Parent

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

There's an entrancing Britisher named Gerald Durrell who adores animals, has collected them, written books about them and is now director of the Jersey Zoological Park. And as love him as much as he loves animals, I shall this summer except for you portions of his book, "My Family and Other Animals," by permission of its publisher (Viking Press).

At the age of 10, his "education" was the despair of his family. As they lived on a Greek island, they had to import teachers from England. However, the imports so bored him he couldn't listen to them. For his head was just too filled with delighted thoughts of his own about the marvelous things in the garden—baby scorpions, strange spiders, love-making tortoises. So his teachers came and went.

At last, a real teacher arrived—a young university student who just must have been fired with passion for Roman history. For one day he happened to inform young Gerald that the elephants used by Hannibal to cross the Alps had names. When he went on to say that the elephants got so cold on the Alpine heights they had to be warmed by hotwater bottles, the cause of education was saved. That lovely little boy was able to listen.

It's a 9-year-old who is the problem of the mother who writes:

"The child's teachers say he is mentally capable but won't pay attention. He daydreams in class instead of listening. At home he also has to be pushed into doing simple chores. However, he is a very kind child, patient and loving."

My dear friend, a teaching license doesn't make a teacher. And any time you get fed up with this kind, patient, loving child of yours who finds his own thoughts more interesting than those of his teachers, just give him to me. It is my prejudice that kind, patient and loving little boys are the hope of this world.

Know what a real teacher is? A poet. So he couldn't care less about the "attention" you pay to him. He isn't interested in it. What he's interested in is his own subject. He's so fired with when he starts talking about it, jewels pour out of his mouth exactly as sapphires, diamonds and rubies poured out of the mouth of the girl in the fairy tale. And so he leaves you no alternative but to run after him to grab up as many of them as you can. THAT IS A TEACHER. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Doctor's Mailbag

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.

Studies on the treatment of heart attacks are branching out in so many directions and with such profusion that even the doctors are sometimes confused. Here is the best advice as given by recognized authorities:

In the first six to eight weeks after a coronary occlusion (myocardial infarction), the victim should be in a hospital, preferably in a coronary care unit. The first requirement is to relieve pain with morphine or meperidine. If the pain is persistent and there is evidence of shock, oxygen is given. If the victim is restless, sedatives are given, and, if the pulse is irregular, a drug to restore normal rhythm is given.

Anticoagulants appear to be of value in preventing recurrences and should be given regularly for three months after the attack. Some doctors continue their use for two or three years but their value slowly declines. They should not be taken indefinitely.

It is important to follow the progress of recovery with frequent electrocardiograms and sedimentation rate determinations. If the victim has diabetes, high blood pressure or a high cholesterol level, these must be treated to lessen the chances of a future heart attack. Much has been written recently about the dangers of too much cholesterol in the blood, but this is not nearly so important as to lower a high blood pressure and to cut out smoking, especially cigarettes. Iced drinks are forbidden during the acute stage because they cause a reflex constriction of the arteries, including those that feed the heart muscle.

Although bed rest is prescribed during the acute stage, the use of a bedside commode is preferred to the bedpan and as soon as the victim's temperature is normal he is encouraged to sit in an armchair for as long as he likes without getting overtired.

When he returns home, he is confined to one room for one week, except to go to the toilet. In the second week he is confined to one floor and in the third week he may slowly go up and down one flight of stairs, sit outdoors or ride in an auto. In the fourth week he may walk to a nearby store but should carry no packages. He may also conduct some business by telephone.

At the end of four weeks he should have a checkup and, if all signs are favorable, he may return to work half time. Such exercise as walking, jogging, cycling and swimming are encouraged but not those that require breath holding, such as weight lifting, chinning and pushups. Any exercise that causes chest pain, excessive fatigue or shortness of breath should be avoided.

— Special Series — Etiquette for Young People

Full, Part-Time Jobs -- Part VII

By ELIZABETH L. POST

(This is the seventh of a series of 12 articles excerpted from "The Emily Post Book of Etiquette for Young People," by Elizabeth L. Post, published by Funk & Wagnalls.)

The first thing an employer will take note of is, of course, your appearance. It is not the elegance of your clothes and grooming that will count, but rather their neatness and appropriateness. Your hair should be clean and combed, your clothes spotless, pressed, and conservative in style, and, if you're a girl, your make-up restrained. Medium heels rather than spikes, a good-looking suit or tailored dress rather than a skin-tight knit, and a simple hairdo instead of a teased tower add up to a well-groomed working girl. A boy makes the best impression dressed in slacks or trousers—not jeans—a shirt and tie, well-shined shoes or loafers, and a conservative sports jacket. If it's a job in a bank or business office, a suit is always appropriate. Your manner should not, of course, be bold, but neither should you be timid. Modesty combined with self-confidence makes the ideal combination.

Let your interviewer direct the conversation, but when he turns the lead over to you be ready with some intelligent questions as to the training program, opportunities for advancement, and the work you would be doing. You may certainly ask about details of vacation time, pay, and so forth, but after you have established the fact that you are interested in the work itself. The interviewer will undoubtedly ask you why you want to work for the XYZ Company and what your expectations are, as well as about your training and past experience. Have your answers ready. Nothing makes a better impression than a quick, intelligent reply as opposed to a floundering "Well, er, um, I really don't know." Answer all questions as fully as you can, but don't ramble. The interviewer probably has other applications to see.

Remember your good manners. A polite greeting, a thank-you leave and calling the interviewer by his name all help to make you look better than average. Don't chew gum, don't smoke, and don't sit down until you're asked to. It's probable that the interviewer will say, "You'll hear from us next week," and, if he does, don't try to pin him down any further. Smile, thank him for his kindness, and tell him you'll be waiting to hear from him.

Successful Sitters

Chances are that the first job a teen-age girl will hold is that of babysitter. And boys, too, are finding this an easy and practical way to make money. There are a lot of things to consider if you've never had a sitting job, and many that may not have occurred to you even if you have "sat" occasionally. Never forget, for example, that your first duty is to keep your charges safe, and the second is to keep them contented. I'm going to make some suggestions that should not only make your job more fun, but should result in more money in the bank.

Establish Your Rates

When the mother calls to ask you to sit, establish your pay rates immediately and clearly. If you expect overtime pay when parents arrive home late, or if you wish to be paid a bonus for extra duties, such as cooking the children's meal, say so. It's terribly unpleasant to get into a hassle over the fee and not to know what to say when the parents ask how much they owe you at the end of the evening.

Start Out Right

If you don't know the children, ask if you may arrive a few minutes early to get acquainted while the parents are still at home. It will smooth over possible difficulties if small children realize that you and their mother and father are all in the same league.

You'll make an immediate hit with the youngsters if you spend the first few minutes entertaining them. Read to them, play games, do a few card tricks, or make them something out of paper or string. Don't rush them off to bed too fast just so you can see your favorite TV show. Let them sit up with you and make their after-supper hour fun.

Be Firm, Not Furious

Be firm about eating, bed-time hours, and any other regulations the parents have made—but never, never strike a child. Some parents do believe in spanking, others don't in any case, it is not up to a sitter to discipline in this way. You may deprive them of TV, you may call off games or reading, or you may send them to bed early, but you must not punish in any more severe form.

List Important Information

If you plan to make sitting a regular job, you should have a list of questions to ask the parents when you arrive. It can be a mental list, but it's better to make it a written one, because not only are you apt to forget some of the things you wanted to know, but you're almost sure to forget some of the answers. A good list would include:

Feeding Instructions:

What food is it ready or to be prepared?

At what time do the children eat?

How much must they finish?

Any special table rules?

Bedtime:

What time?

How many trips for water or bathroom?

Baby picked up if he cries?

Bath necessary?

TV and Radio:

Instructions on use.

You'll make an immediate hit with the youngsters if you spend the first few minutes entertaining them. Read to them, play games, do a few card tricks, or make them something out of paper or string. Don't rush them off to bed too fast just so you can see your favorite TV show. Let them sit up with you and make their after-supper hour fun.

Be Firm, Not Furious
Be firm about eating, bedtime hours, and any other regulations the parents have made—but never, never strike a child. Some parents do believe in spanking, others don't in any case, it is not up to a sitter to discipline in this way. You may deprive them of TV, you may call off games or reading, or you may send them to bed early, but you must not punish in any more severe form.

List Important Information
If you plan to make sitting a regular job, you should have a list of questions to ask the parents when you arrive. It can be a mental list, but it's better to make it a written one, because not only are you apt to forget some of the things you wanted to know, but you're almost sure to forget some of the answers. A good list would include:

Feeding Instructions:
What food is it ready or to be prepared?
At what time do the children eat?
How much must they finish?
Any special table rules?

Bedtime:
What time?
How many trips for water or bathroom?
Baby picked up if he cries?
Bath necessary?
TV and Radio:
Instructions on use.

Telephone:
Limitations on use?
General Questions:

Do parents object if you nap when they expect to be very late?
If not, where?
May your girl friend come over to keep you company? (Needless to say—no boys.)
What snacks or drinks may you take?

Instructions for using dishwasher; for instance, are there any things that may not be put in it?
If employers are not taking you home, and you cannot arrange for transportation, what arrangements can be made? For example, will the employer pay for a taxi?

Make a form out of as much or as little as you wish of the preceding list, but you must write down two numbers, and put them close to the phone—the number where the parents can be reached, and the number of the children's doctor. With these two numbers, and the possibility of calling your own parents in an emergency, you should be able to cope with any situation.

Never Let an Employer Down

There are two last points to remember. First, never let an employer down. If you cannot possibly keep a date, do your level best to find a replacement. It may be that every reliable person you know is busy that night; if so, call the parents far enough in advance so that they themselves can find a substitute.

Admit Your Errors

Second, last, and very important—don't be afraid to admit to the parents any troubles you may have had. It is their right to know if the children are misbehaving in their absence. It is also their right to know of any mistakes you may have made. Older people realize that teenagers learn by experience, and they admire those who admit their errors and want to learn from them. Frankness will win you many more jobs than a smooth, "Oh, everything went beautifully," when the evening was really a chamber of horrors!

Dear Friends:

Your response in helping us solve the problem of laundering polished cotton curtains successfully was tremendous. You're all great.

Here are several of the most popular ways that were sent in which have been used with good results (I added a few comments):

"Add a little borax to the water in which saten (polished cotton) is washed, then iron the fabric on the wrong side and the material will keep its gloss."

"Dip washed curtains into a thin (very light) solution of clear, HOT cooked starch to which a small amount of wax (about the size of a walnut) has been added. Use paraffin or white candle wax and stir starch thoroughly until all wax is dissolved. Iron curtains while damp on right side." (This worked great for me.)

"Use the wash and wear cycle of washing machine. After the rinse water has run into washer, add one cup of liquid starch (the kind that comes already to use and is blue). Iron with a hot iron BEFORE completely dry."

"Dissolve one package of plain gelatin in the final rinse water." (This was excellent, too.)

"To wash polished cotton, save the water that rice has been boiled in. Add a small amount of glycerine to the mixture and use for the last rinse. For white polished cotton, substitute a tiny amount of blueing for the glycerine." (The Chinese use this method.)

Everyone seems to agree that polished cotton should be washed in COOL water and ironed while damp.

So, gals, those of you who have beautiful polished cotton curtains and bedspreads, the next time you launder them, try one of the above methods which our good friends have used successfully when doing theirs.

Bless you all. And last, but surely the MOST important is: DON'T USE BLEACH or anything with bleach in it when washing polished cotton or saten. Perhaps that's the way lots of them were ruined. A chemist told me this years ago. True, too.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I wonder how many ladies who have no dishwashers use my method for drying glasses and cups? Especially after lots of company...

I heat my oven to 200 degrees. Wash and rinse the cups and glasses. Then turn OFF the oven and place cups on the bottom oven grate, glasses on the other one.

The heat will dry them all perfectly.

Sure saves lots of work. Not only saves drying them but quite sanitary, too.

Grandma

Dear Heloise:

The lady who said your name must be Minerva surely must have been kidding!

As far as we housewives are concerned, you are our waiting Matilda.

We waltz with you every day because you do our laundry with us, help us wash woodwork, do dishes, etc.

Dear Heloise:

Here's a hint I hope will be of help to mothers.

When I first put our little daughter into a youth bed which didn't have sides on it, she had a few falls in the night.

So I blew up an air mattress and placed it on the floor beside her bed. Now if she falls out, it doesn't hurt her.

In the mornings when I make up her bed, instead of deflating the mattress, I just shove it under the bed. It's out of sight until I am ready to use it again. Sure solved my problem.

Lois Palkovic

Dear Heloise:

Here's a hint which helped me with flower arrangements in vases made from plastic squeeze containers.

I punched several holes in the sides about an inch from the top, after having cut the container to the proper height.

Then a few extra flowers can be stuck through these holes. It helps to hold the other flowers in place as well as making the arrangement more attractive.

Just see that the stems go down enough to reach the water.

Senators Check Sox To Halt Slide, 3-1

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Speedster Ed Stroud collected two singles, stole two bases and scored two runs Thursday night, enabling the Washington Senators to snap a six-game losing streak with a 3-1 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Stroud scored the Senators' first run on a wild pitch by Jerry Stephenson in the second inning and an insurance tally in the sixth on a double by winning pitcher Phil Ortega, who posted his fourth victory with relief help from Dick Baldwin.

Stroud singled in the second and scored without benefit of a hit by stealing second, rattling Stephenson into a balk and then tallying on the wild pitch. He followed his sixth-inning single with a stolen base and easily scored on Ortega's double.

The Senators scored the tie-breaking run in the fifth on singles by Fred Valentine and Bill Bryan and Bernie Allen's infield out.

Boston nipped Ortega for its only run in the fourth on a double by Reggie Smith, an infield out and Stephenson's infield hit.

The Red Sox loaded the bases in the ninth but Baldwin struck out Ken Harrelson.

Gary Boice, Kingston High's top miler and Gordie Taylor, Rondout Valley Central's three-letter ace, are among 16 of the finest schoolboy runners in the Hudson Valley area who will compete in Saturday's 17th Annual Hudson Valley Relays at New Paltz Central School.

Boice, with a career low of 4:29 for the mile, will be joined by seven other entries, Taylor, who stars in football, basketball and track for the Ganders, is a 10.2 man in the 100 yards.

In addition to Boice, the field for the Invitational Mile includes: H. McDonald, Yorktown High; J. Schindler and B. Curran, Archbishop Stepinac High; J. Montgomery, Bishop Gibbons High; Douglas Middleton, Irvington High; J. Agosto, Nanuet High; J. Landolt, Suffern; Wayne Zanetti, Tri-Valley Central; and Tom Kane of Ardsley High.

The all-time record for the relays is 4 minutes, 25.9 seconds set by John Tweedy of Kingston High in the 1961 event.

Ellenville High's Tom Murray, with a 10:05 rating in the 100 yard dash, is a threat in that event. The record is a brilliant 9.6 seconds set by Andrew Spodis of Hudson High in 1959. It failed to gain state recognition, however, because of a strong tail wind.

Besides Taylor and Murray, the 100 field includes: D. Effort, Sleepy Hollow High; Frank Bria, Nanuet High; R. Nedvid, Bishop Gibbons; Darrell Stevens, Valley Central; J. Barnes, Alexander Hamilton High; A. Williams, Training School (Goshen).

Expect 1200 Boys
Approximately 1200 boys, representing 45 schools, are expected to compete in Saturday's event. This is an increase of seven schools over last year.

All field events and relays, the 440, 880, mile and two miles and medleys will be contested in A, B and C classifications. The highlights of the meet, of course, are the Invitational 100 and Invitational Mile.

The relays were inaugurated in 1933 in Newburgh and were transferred to New Paltz in 1951.

Relay officials expect an average of about seven new records a season. Here are the major marks the athletes will be shooting at:

100 yards—Andrew Spodis, Hudson High, 9.6 in 1959.
1 mile—John Tweedy, Kingston High, 4:25.9 in 1961.

Triple Jump—Elmer Oliphant, Sleepy Hollow, 44 ft., 5 1/4 inches in 1967.

Discus—Dave Heermans, Arlington, 159 ft., 2 1/4 inches, 1964.

Shot Put—Tom Moody, Cardinal Farley, 59 ft., 4 in., 1966.

Long Jump—Dennis Garrant, Monroe, 24 ft., 2 1/4 inches, 1965.

High Jump—Tie at 6 feet, 4 inches between Jim Wilkerson, Port Jervis (1964) and M. Cooper, Sleepy Hollow, 1967.

Pole Vault—Mike Munninger, Albany Academy, 12 ft., 6 1/4 inches, 1966.

STANLEY CUP—Glen Hall, netminder of the St. Louis Blues stops Canadiens Ralph Backstrom (6) as he gets his leg up to stop the scoring attempt. Moving in on the play is Bob Plager (5) of the Blues. Canadiens won 4-3 in 1 minute 43 seconds of first overtime. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Canadiens Lead, 3-0 In Stanley Playoffs

MONTREAL (UPI) Bobby Rousseau jammed in a loose puck in the goal crease at 1:33 of the first overtime period to give the Montreal Canadiens a 4-3 victory over the St. Louis Blues Thursday night and a commanding 3-0 lead in their best of seven Stanley Cup hockey final.

Rousseau's goal came after Dick Duff made the key play, going in alone and forcing goalie Glenn Hall to make a fine falling save. But Hall couldn't control the puck and Rousseau was there to jab it behind the veteran netminder.

It was the second overtime victory in the series for Montreal, which now needs only to win Saturday afternoon to clinch its 15th Stanley Cup.

The loss spoiled a fine uphill effort by the Blues, who twice came back to tie the game on beautiful scoring efforts by Montreal castoff Red Berenson.

It was the strapping Berenson's third period goal at 17:25 that forced the game into overtime.

Once into an extra session, it was all Montreal as the Canadiens had four shots on Hall while the Blues failed to test Gump Worsley at the other end.

Overall, Montreal bombed Hall with 46 shots while Worsley almost had the night off with a total of only 15 shots to handle.

Chicago (UPI)—Bill Singer pitched a three-hitter Thursday and got home run support from Zoilo Versalles, Bob Bailey and Rocky Colavito to give the suddenly explosive Los Angeles Dodgers a 6-0 triumph over the Chicago Cubs.

Cubs' starter Ken Holtzman was beaten by the Dodgers for the first time in his career after five victories. Holtzman gave up a bases-empty homer to Versalles in the first inning and Bailey homered in the fourth after a single by Colavito. It was the first homer of the season for each of them.

Colavito's homer, his third in two days, and the 369th of his career, came with Versalles on base in the eighth. Singer doubled to open the inning, reached third on Versalles' hit and scored on Wes Parker's sacrifice fly.

Wynn, Davis Homers Spark Astro Victory

HOUSTON (UPI)—Jim Wynn and Ron Davis hit home runs to support the six-hit pitching of Dave Giusti and lead the Houston Astros to a 5-3 victory over the San Francisco Giants Thursday night.

Wynn broke a 2-2 tie in the third inning with his fourth homer of the season into the second deck in left field. Davis had hit southpaw Mike McCormick's first pitch of the game off the facing of the second deck for his first homer of the year.

Giusti, the leading pitcher on his first July 10 start and the Astros' staff this year, retired 20 of the last 22 men after allowing single runs in the second and third innings.

The only batter to reach base against him after the third was Willie McCovey, who singled in the sixth and hit his eighth homer in the eighth inning to take over the National League lead.

Giusti struck out eight and walked only one in winning his third game against two losses.

The Giants scored in the second on McCovey's double, Jim Hart's single and a groundout. Their third-inning run came on singles by Jim Davenport and Willy Mays and Hart's sacrifice fly.

The Astros took a 2-0 lead in the first on Davis' homer, a hit batter, a walk and Denis Menke's single. Menke scored the Astros' fourth run in the fourth inning when he led off with a single and moved around on hits by Julio Gotay and Davis.

Houston's last run came in the fifth on an error, a sacrifice and Bob Aspromonte's single.

PAUL GRUNER

Paul Gruner Hikes Bat Mark at UConn

Former Kingston High School star Paul Gruner has shook off his early season batting slump and is now the hottest hitter on the University of Connecticut baseball squad, according to Joe Soltyz, Sports Information Director at the Storrs, Conn., school.

Gruner, who was benched from his catching position because of the inability at the plate, has caught fire, banging out a triple and seven singles in 15 at bats last week to boost his season's batting average to .314, on 11-of-35 in the Yankee Conference.

UConn coach Larry Panciera shifted Gruner to left field, where he has come alive in both the field and at bat. The result, a 5-1 mark (first place) in the Yankee Conference and an 11-7 overall record including victories over Springfield and Brown on Monday and Tuesday respectively.

With only 35 at bats, Gruner doesn't qualify for the weekly listings in the conference, but his lofty .314 would put him in sixth.

Gruner's former batterymate at KHS, Brian Bach, is tied for third with two others in the ERA department of the conference with a nifty 2.02 mark. His record is 1-2 and has given up seven runs in 26-plus innings. All but one of those runs was earned.

The loss spoiled a fine uphill effort by the Blues, who twice came back to tie the game on beautiful scoring efforts by Montreal castoff Red Berenson. It was the strapping Berenson's third period goal at 17:25 that forced the game into overtime.

Once into an extra session, it was all Montreal as the Canadiens had four shots on Hall while the Blues failed to test Gump Worsley at the other end.

Overall, Montreal bombed Hall with 46 shots while Worsley almost had the night off with a total of only 15 shots to handle.

The Canadiens, playing before

Paul Gruner Hikes Bat Mark at UConn

Former Kingston High School star Paul Gruner has shook off his early season batting slump and is now the hottest hitter on the University of Connecticut baseball squad, according to Joe Soltys, Sports Information Director at the Storrs, Conn., school.

Gruner, who was benched from his catching position because of the inability at the plate, has caught fire, banging out a triple and seven singles in 15 at bats last week to boost his season's batting average to .314, on 11-of-35 in the Yankee Conference.

UConn coach Larry Panciera shifted Gruner to left field, where he has come alive in both the field and at bat. The result, a 5-1 mark (first place) in the Yankee Conference and an 11-7 overall record including victories over Springfield and Brown on Monday and Tuesday respectively.

With only 35 at bats, Gruner doesn't qualify for the weekly listings in the conference, but his lofty .314 would put him in sixth.

Gruner's former batterymate at KHS, Brian Bach, is tied for

Top Giants, 5 Wynn, Davis Homers Spark Astro Victory

HOUSTON (UPI)—Jim Wynn and Ron Davis hit home runs to support the six-hit pitching of Dave Giusti and lead the Houston Astros to a 5-3 victory over the San Francisco Giants Thursday night.

Wynn broke a 2-2 tie in the third inning with his fourth homer of the season into the second deck in left field. Davis had hit southpaw Mike McCormack's first pitch of the game off the facing of the second deck for his first homer of the year.

Giusti, the leading pitcher on the staff this year, retired 20 of the last 22 men after allowing single runs in the second and third innings.

The only batter to reach base against him after the third was Willie McCovey, who singled in the sixth and hit his eighth homer in the eighth inning to take over the National League lead.

Giusti struck out eight and walked only one in winning his third game against two losses.

The Giants scored in the second on McCormack's double, Jim Hart's single and a groundout. Their third-inning run came on singles by Jim Davenport and Willy Mays and Hart's sacrifice fly.

The Astros took a 2-0 lead in the first on Davis' homer, a hit batter, a walk and Denis Menke's single. Menke scored the Astros' fourth run in the fourth inning when he led off with a single and moved around on hits by Julio Gotay and Davis. Houston's last run came in the fifth on an error, a sacrifice and Bob Aspromonte's single.

Two Ward Homers Win for Chisox

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI)—Pete Ward smashed a pair of bases-empty home runs Thursday night to deadlock San Francisco's Willie McCovey for first place in that department and give the Chicago White Sox a 4-2 victory over the Oakland Athletics.

A turnout of 4,062, the smallest yet at home for the transplanted Athletics, saw Ward lift the Sox into a 2-2 tie with a 340-foot shot to right field in the fifth. Then the big Canadian hoisted another in the seventh, which barely cleared the right field fence at the 330-foot mark. The blow brought his season total to eight.

Southpaw Garry Peters, with GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI)—Guard Bill Lueck of Arizona, one of two first round picks of the Green Bay Packers, has signed his 1968 contract with the National Football League club. The Packers previously had signed linebacker Fred Carr of Texas-El Paso.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hank and the Killer and Willie are still going strong but a new set of stars for the future is beginning to form in baseball's younger crowd.

Even the New York Mets have a couple of big "maybes" with super-star potential in outfielder Ron Swoboda and pitcher Jerry Koosman.

Rod Carew of the Minnesota Twins, the American League's rookie of the year last season, looks as if he's for real. Tommie "The Other" Aaron of the Atlanta Braves, Don Kessinger of the Chicago Cubs, Reggie Jackson and Ramon Webster of the Oakland Athletics, Roger Repoz of the California Angels, Alex Johnson of Cincinnati and Tom Phoebus of Baltimore are among the comparative new-comers crowding the oldies.

Hank Aaron of the Braves, Willie Mays of San Francisco and Harmon "Killer" Killebrew of the Twins are helping the old-timers hold the fort but it's fairly obvious baseball will remain in good hands when they pack it in.

Swoboda, in his fourth major league season, originally was tabbed as star material by old C-sey Stengel. Casey advised one and all the time would come when nobody would be laughing at the kid he then called "Saboda" and probably still does.

Swoboda, who appeared to have two right hands and two left feet when he joined the Mets, has sorted them out nicely now. He may not be the world's greatest fly-catcher but his "butchering" days are behind him and that's more than could be said of certain sluggers of the past.

Chief hope is Ron's bat. He was leading the majors in homers in the early going and if there's anything the customers done on in the big town its a home run hitter to remind them of Goliaths like Ruth, Gehrig, DiMag, Mantle, Mays and Ott when the Giants were around. Duke Snider and Hodges of the old Dodgers.

Koosman is a kid pitcher who strikes out people. He won his first four decisions before learning how the rest of the big league world lives. The Cubs beat him last Sunday.

Carew started hitting the day he went into the Minnesota lineup and hasn't stopped yet, soaring above .350 earlier this week.

Tommie Aaron, five years younger than brother Hank, is old in years at 28 but new in accomplishment. He ducked in and out of the majors since 1963 before putting in a true brother act with Hank to climb in among the National League's top hitters this week.

Jackson has been hitting for average with the A's as well as leading the club in home runs. Webster has been leading the team in runs knocked in with a listing among the league leaders.

Among the pitchers, sophomore Phoebus already has come up with the year's first no-hitter over the Boston Red Sox and dropped only one of his first five decisions.

Ferguson Jenkins of the Cubs, a 20-game winner last year, in his second full season, still is on the beam with four victories in his first five decisions.

Jim Hardin of Baltimore, at Rochester part of last year, won his first four.

Pete Helmich, Kingston High's knuckleballing pitcher, went to his blazing fastball yesterday and chalked up his fourth win against one setback as the Maroon dumped home-standing Middletown, 3-1, in a DUSO League baseball game.

Helmich, who registered 11 strikeouts against five walks and two singles, survived a shaky second inning but regained control of the game, blanking the Middies after the second.

KHS, 2-0 in DUSO play and tied with Newburgh for the league lead, staked Helmich to a 2-0, first frame lead and the bespectacled righthander made those runs standup.

The Maroon, who got five singles in all off Middie's starter, Paul Hughes, added another marker in the fifth to take some of the pressure off Helmich.

The blond flinger hit the games only long ball, a seventyninning leadoff home run over the left field fence that umpire Art Kalaka called a foul ball. The Maroon, protested the call, claiming the ball was fair, but Kalaka, like all arbiters, won the argument.

Helmich, when deserting the fastball, found himself in a hole. Each time he went to the knuckler, he experienced difficulty with control and issued a walk.

Waiks First Batter

The first batter for the Middies, catcher Al Leidy, drew a full-count walk but was caught stealing by KHS backstop, Harry Lyons.

Helmich gave the Middies a sample of what he had, by whiffing the Middies second batter and with Leidy going on a two-strike count on the third batter, Helmich blew the third strike by, with Lyons completing the double play by catching Leidy at second.

The Maroon got their first inning runs on a wild and wooly play. After one out, Bill Brady singled but went out at second as Jerry Corrado hit into a forced play.

Greg Rios next up, snapped a two-game hitting slump and singled, sending Corrado to third.

On a 2-0 pitch to Gary Schatzel, Rios took off for second and successfully stole the base. Schatzel walked to load the sacks, setting up the wild play.

Error Allows Scores

Lyons, next up, hit a sharp grounder to third baseman Chuck Smith, who bobbled the throw, and when he had no chance at either home or third, fired to first. The throw went wild and Rios followed Corrado across the plate. Rios slid, catching the plate with the tip of his spikes as Leidy went to place the tag.

Helmich gave up the first of his two hits in the second, a single to Carl Berry. He followed it with a walk to Hughes and after a sacrifice fly by Tom Congolosi that moved Berry to third, Helmich threw wild in an attempt to get Hughes stealing second.

Berry scored and Hughes went to third, Helmich, knowing the pressure was on, whiffed the next two hitters, Charlie Thomas and Phil Sheremeta, to kill the rally.

Helmich settled down after that, never letting a batter get past second and at the same time, racking up at least one strikeout in every inning.

The last three whiffs were set up by fastballs, the final pitches, the one marking the strikeouts, were curve balls. The Maroon now hold a 6-2-1 overall mark and host Lourdes at 4 p. m. today.

In other DUSO action, Newburgh, in an attempt to stay up with the surging Maroon, dumped Port Jervis, 8-2 on a three-hitter by Jim Killen.

The Goldbacks and Maroon clash on Monday at Dietz Stadium.

Both DUSO Village League games were rained out. The Monticello-Fallsburgh and Liberty-Elleville games were postponed until a later date.

Atlanta Wins, 4-2

ATLANTA (UPI) — Sonny Jackson drove in three runs with a pair of singles Thursday night, sparking the Atlanta Braves to a 4-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Ron Reed, a former professional basketball player, was credited with his third victory of the season against no defeats but needed relief help in the ninth inning from Jim Britton.

The Braves scored two runs in the second inning before loser Bob Moose, now 0-2, could get anybody out. Tito Francona who had three hits including a double, led off with a single.

Tommie Aaron walked and Clete Boyer singled to load the bases. Then Jackson singled to drive home Francona and Aaron.

The home run was one of three hits for Callison, who tripled home two runs in the first inning and then doubled in the ninth when the Phillies added their final three runs of the game on Rojas' homer with Bobby Wine and Tony Taylor aboard.

Milt Pappas pitched the first seven innings for the Reds and gave up four runs and six hits, including Callison's two-run homer in the third inning. Billy McCool was the victim of Rojas' homer in the ninth.

Call Ferrono of Saugerties, third seeded singles player, defeated Tom Price 9-7, giving the Sawyers a chance to win if they took both doubles matches. Steady defense and a crippling offense gave Beacon's top ranked combination of Bryan Nerrie and Ray Barger an 8-2 victory over Ward Borchardt and Bruce Luhrs. The triumph put the match out of reach for Saugerties.

Saugerties (0-6) hosts two of the perennial DCSL contenders next week. Oakwood meets the Sawyers Tuesday and Ketchikan slated Thursday.

Helmich, who registered 11 strikeouts against five walks and two singles, survived a shaky second inning but regained control of the game, blanking the Middies after the second.

KHS, 2-0 in DUSO play and tied with Newburgh for the league lead, staked Helmich to a 2-0, first frame lead and the bespectacled righthander made those runs standup.

The Maroon, who got five singles in all off Middie's starter, Paul Hughes, added another marker in the fifth to take some of the pressure off Helmich.

The blond flinger hit the games only long ball, a seventh-inning leadoff home run over the left field fence that umpire Art Kalaka called a foul ball. The Maroon protested the call, claiming the ball was fair, but Kalaka, like all arbiters, won the argument.

Helmich, when deserting the fastball, found himself in a hole. Each time he went to the knuckler, he experienced difficulty with control and issued a walk.

Waiks First Batter

The first batter for the Middies, catcher Al Leidy, drew a full-count walk but was caught stealing by KHS backstop, Harry Lyons.

Helmich gave the Middies a sample of what he had by whiffing the Middies second batter and with Leidy going on a two-strike count on the third batter, Helmich blew the third strike by with Lyons completing the double play by catching Leidy at second.

The Maroon got their first inning runs on a wild and wooly play. After one out, Bill Brady, singled but went out at second as Jerry Corrado hit into a forced play.

Greg Rios next up, snapped a two-game hitting slump and singled, sending Corrado to third.

On a 2-0 pitch to Gary Schatzel, Rios took off for second and successfully stole the base. Schatzel walked to load the sacks, setting up the wild play.

Error Allows Scores

Lyons, next up, hit a sharp grounder to third baseman Chuck Smith, who bobbled the throw, and when he had no chance at either home or third, he threw to first. The throw went wild and Rios followed Corrado across the plate. Rios executed a perfect hook slide, catching the plate with the tip of his spikes as Leidy went to place the tag.

Helmich gave up the first of his two hits in the second, a single to Carl Berry. He followed it with a walk to Hughes and after a sacrifice fly by Tom Congolosi that moved Berry to third, Helmich threw wild in an attempt to get Hughes stealing second.

Berry scored and Hughes went to third. Helmich, knowing the pressure was on, whiffed the next two hitters, Charlie Thomas and Phil Shermeta, to kill the rally.

Helmich settled down after that, never letting a batter get past second and at the same time, racking up at least one strikeout in every inning.

The last three whiffs were set up by fastballs, the final pitches, the one marking the strikeouts, were curve balls.

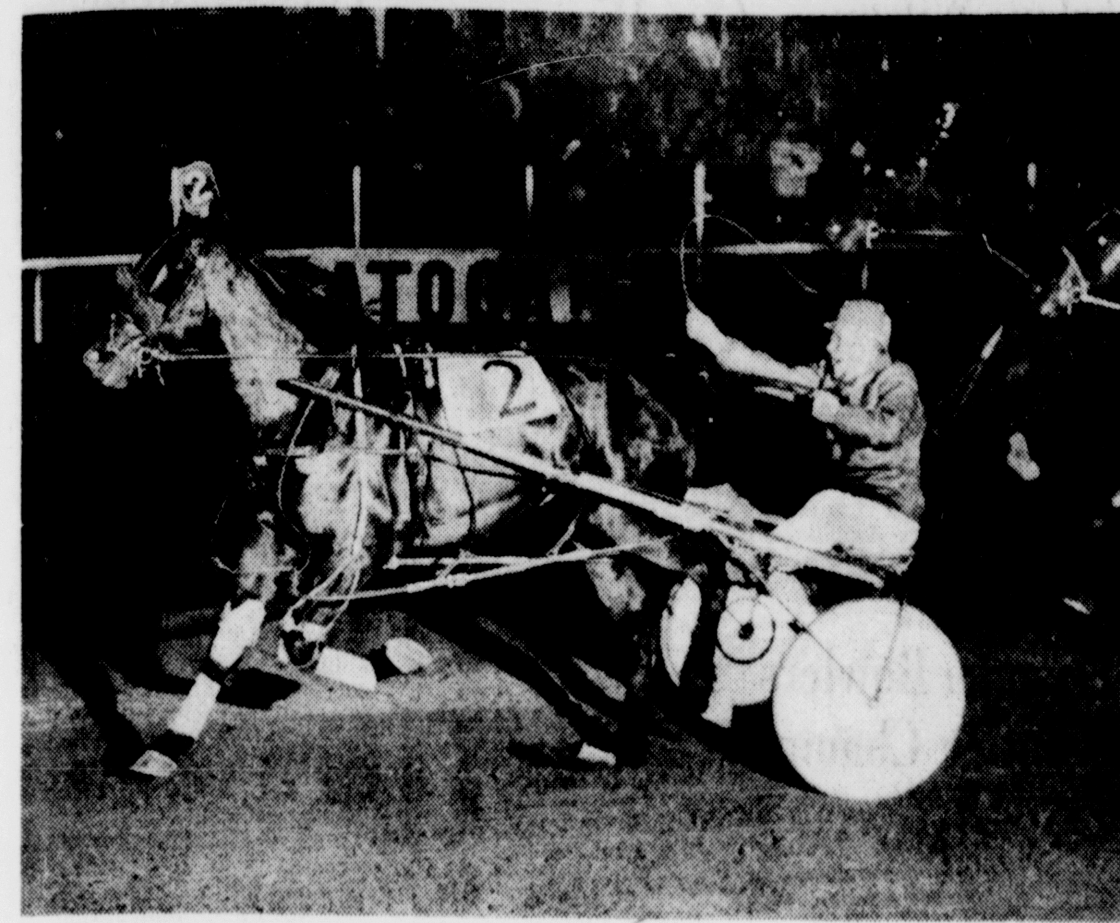

The Maroon now hold a 6-2 overall mark and host Lourdes at 4 p. m. today.

In other DUSO action, Newburgh, in an attempt to stay up with the surging Maroon, dumped Port Jervis, 8-2, on a three-hitter by Jim Killen. The Goldbacks and Maroon clash on Monday at Dietz Stadium.

Both DUSO Village League games were rained out. The Monticello-Palsburgh and Liberty-Elleville games were postponed until a later date.

New Paltz Advances To Second on 4-3 Win

New Paltz, on the strength of Ray Zappone's three-run homer, moved into second place in the UCLAL, supplanting idle Marlboro yesterday, by downing Rondout Valley, 4-3, in baseball at Rondout.

Yesterday's game was originally scheduled for today, but was moved up. Marlboro, which hosts league leader Ontario today, has a chance to throw the race into a three way tie should the Dukes down the Indians.

With the score knotted at 1-1, New Paltz staged a three-run fifth inning rally, with Zappone's homer scoring the final two runs.

Dane Bart opened with a single, stole the next two bases and scored the go-ahead run on Gary DuBois' strikeout that went as a wild pitch. DuBois was thrown out at first, Bart holding third.

Jim Schuller walked and stole second, setting up Zappone's home run.

For Rondout, it was the second UCLAL loss in a row and for the Huguenots, the third straight win.

Atlanta Wins, 4-2

ATLANTA (UPI) — Sonny Jackson drove in three runs with a pair of singles Thursday night, sparking the Atlanta Braves to a 4-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Ron Reed, a former professional basketball player, was credited with his third victory of the season against no defeats but needed relief help in the ninth inning from Jim Britton.

The Braves scored two runs in the second inning before loser Bob Moose, now 0-2, could get anybody out. Tito Francona who had three hits including a double, led off with a single. Tommie Aaron walked and Cleve Boyer singled to load the bases. Then Jackson singled to drive home Francona and Aaron.

The home run was one of three hits for Callison, who tripled home two runs in the first inning and then doubled in the ninth when the Phillies added their final three runs of the game on Rojas' homer with Bobby Wine and Tony Taylor aboard.

Milt Pappas pitched the first seven innings for the Reds and gave up four runs and six hits, including Callison's two-run homer in the third inning. Billy McCool was the victim of Rojas' homer in the ninth.

Tovar Single Wins for Reds
ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI)—Cesar Tovar singled in Rod Carew in the 10th inning Thursday night to clinch an uphill battle for a 4-3 Minnesota Twins victory over the California Angels.

Carew doubled with one out in the 10th off Jim Weaver, the fifth Angel pitcher. It was his third hit and when Tovar singled Carew scored his third run of the game.

Ron Perranoski who took over for the Twins in the eighth and pitched two innings was credited with the victory, his first of the season. Weaver was charged with his first loss just a week after being recalled from Seattle.

Dear Abby

You Should Be So Lucky

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1968 Chi. Trib. News Synd. Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: In our circle there is a widow past 65 who has a man living with her. He's a cousin (widower) about her age. She tells people that she is afraid to be alone in the house without a man. The home is hers and this cousin helps with the household chores. They share expenses, and seem to be enjoying the arrangement. Most of her friends do not approve of this setup, but so far they haven't let her know how they feel. What do you think of such an arrangement?

DEAR TRUMPS: I think every widow over 65 should be so lucky as to have a male cousin about her age with whom to share her home, expenses and to keep her company. And that goes double for widowers.

DEAR ABBY: I met a girl four months ago and we were immediately attracted to one another. We saw a lot of each other, so our four months courtship is not really as brief as it sounds. (She's 22 and I am 26.) We plan to marry soon, but she says we have to keep it a secret from everyone but our folks on account of her job. She says she promised her boss before he hired her that she would not get married for at least TWO YEARS. (She's been there almost a year.) She says they wouldn't have hired her otherwise as they don't hire girls who plan on getting married because after they marry they get pregnant right away, and then they either quit or take a long leave of absence, and they're never the same after that.

I say she should tell her boss she's taking "The Pill" and doesn't plan on getting pregnant for at least five years, and if he doesn't want to keep her, she can get another job.

She says she likes her job and doesn't want to risk losing it. Besides she gets a nice bonus and increases after each year. I say, no wife of mine is going to work as a "miss" and leave her wedding ring in the drawer. Who is right?

JIMMY: DEAR JIMMY: I think you are. And if your girl doesn't see it your way, she obviously is more interested in her job than she is in you. Tell her to explain to her boss that she made the promise not to wed before she met you, also that she doesn't plan on having a family for several years, but how she intends to go about it is strictly her business.

DEAR ABBY: I hope this doesn't sound dumb, coming from a 16-year-old girl, but I haven't dated much and I need to know. Should a girl ever kiss a guy on their first date?

BRONX ADDRESS: DEAR BRONX: The "act" itself is not as important as the motivation. A good-night kiss should communicate "affection," never "thanks." If a boy has shown you a very nice evening, say "thank you"—don't kiss him out of obligation or gratitude.

If there is no "feeling" for the other person, the kiss is meaningless and cheap. A girl should kiss a boy because HE WANTS to—because HE wants to kiss her, or because she feels she owes him something.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SICK, FROM A SMALL TOWN": Time may eventually heal the wound. It may also wound the heel. The advice from here is, "Cool it."

Everybody has a problem. What's yours. For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

HATE TO WRITE LETTERS? SEND $1 TO ABBY, BOX 69700, LOS ANGELES, CAL. 90069, FOR ABBY'S BOOKLET "HOW TO WRITE LETTERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS."

Opening lead—♥J

There are a number of ways to bid the North-South cards, but, as all roads lead to Rome, all lines of bidding are likely to lead to the same three no-trump contract that South reached.

Against any lead but hearts South will have plenty of time to go about the business of setting up nine tricks, but the heart lead is just about automatic whether North or South is declarer.

South has to win the first heart. If he ducks, both his ace and king will fall together on the second heart lead and he will have to scramble for his nine tricks because this second heart lead has set up three tricks in the suit for the defense.

It is hopeless to go after spades. South can't set up more than three tricks in the suit. He can set up three extra diamond tricks to give him a total of eight tricks, but that will leave him one short.

He must go after clubs and if that suit breaks 3-3 he can add five club tricks to his one spade, two hearts and two diamonds, a total of 10. As you can see, clubs aren't going to break evenly and South will have to give up two tricks in order to bring home the rest of the suit.

Furthermore a suit will divide 3-3 less than 40 per cent of the time. However, South has a better play at his disposal. He wins the heart lead in dummy and leads a club toward his hand. If East rises with the ace, South's worries are over. If East ducks as he should, South has one club trick in. He should abandon that suit, lead a diamond and duck in dummy. This will give him five diamond tricks and his contract. Since a suit will break 3-2 more than 60 per cent of the time, it is the correct play once South has brought home a club.

Dear Abby

You Should Be So Lucky

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1968 Chi. Trib.-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)
DEAR ABBY: In our circle there is a widow past 65 who has a man living with her. He's a cousin (widower) about her age. She tells people that she is afraid to be alone in the house without a man. The home is hers and this cousin helps with the household chores. They share expenses, and seem to be enjoying the arrangement. Most of her friends do not approve of this setup, but so far they haven't let her know how they feel. What do you think of such an arrangement?

DEAR TRUMPS: I think every widow over 65 should be so lucky as to have a male cousin about her age with whom to share her home, expenses, and to keep her company. And that goes double for widowers.

DEAR ABBY: I met a girl four months ago and we were immediately attracted to one another. We saw a lot of each other, so our four months courtship is not really as brief as it sounds. (She's 22 and I am 26.) We plan to marry soon, but she says we have to keep it a secret from everyone but our folks on account of her job. She says she promised her boss before he hired her that she would not get married for at least TWO YEARS. (She's been there almost a year.) She says they wouldn't have hired her otherwise as they don't hire girls who plan on getting married because after they marry they get pregnant right away, and then they either quit or take a long leave of absence, and they're never the same after that.

I say she should tell her boss she's taking "The Pill" and doesn't plan on getting pregnant for at least five years, and if he doesn't want to keep her, she can get another job.

She says she likes her job and doesn't want to risk losing it. Besides she gets a nice bonus and increases after each year. I say, no wife of mine is going to work as a "miss" and leave her wedding ring in the drawer. Who is right?

DEAR JIMMY: I think you are. And if your girl doesn't see it your way, she obviously is more interested in her job than she is in you. Tell her to explain to her boss that she made the promise not to wed before she met you, also that she doesn't plan on having a family for several years, but how she intends to go about it is strictly her business.

DEAR ABBY: I hope this doesn't sound dumb, coming from a 16-year-old girl, but I haven't dated much and I need to know. Should a girl ever kiss a guy on their first date? BRONX ADDRESS DEAR BRONX: The "act" itself is not as important as the motivation. A good-night kiss should communicate "affection," never "thanks." If a boy has shown you a very nice evening, say "thank you"—don't kiss him out of obligation or gratitude.

If there is no "feeling" for the other person, the kiss is meaningless and cheap. A girl should kiss a boy because she WANTS to—not because HE wants to kiss her, or because she feels she owes him something.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SICK, FROM A SMALL TOWN": Time may eventually heal the wound. It may also wound the heel. The advice from here is, "Cool it."

Everybody has a problem. What's yours. For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Czechs Taking a Holiday
Despite Red Army Rumors

By GERD KRIWANEK
PRAGUE (UPI)—Foreigners might fret about reports of Soviet army movements toward this nation's borders. But Czechs took a holiday today.
On the streets men and women hurrying off to picnics in the countryside appeared surprised when told of reports from Warsaw that Red army units were seen heading this way. Impossible, they said.
Here, as abroad, there was nothing to confirm Moscow was using force against its former Czech satellite.
While Czechs celebrated the 23rd anniversary of World War II's end, criticism of their new reform, more liberal Communist regime took no holiday in neighboring Poland.
Warsaw Critical
In Warsaw, newspapers attacked the Czechs for allowing criticism of socialism. The Polish Communist party newspaper Trybuna Ludu said the tone Thursday with an editorial that said:
"We believe that those voices alien to the real feelings of the Czechoslovakian community and to friendship linking our nations will be forced to silence."
Later, the Polish official Pap news agency, dropped the word "forced" in relaying the editorial. But clearly Poland's Communist leaders, more loyal to Moscow, were unhappy with the Czechs for ousting Stalinists leaders this year and replacing them with a Red regime that permits public criticism.

In Warsaw, Western diplomats were today seeing how far they could go on roads leading out of town. Thursday some were turned back at the city limits, a move apparently connected with the Soviet troop movements. Russia keeps 30,000 to 40,000 troops in Poland.
Reports by witnesses that Red army units in Poland were moving Wednesday only 35 miles from the Czech frontier was linked by some observers to a Thursday commentary on Prague Radio appealing against Russian intervention in the style of the Soviet crushing of the Hungarian anti-Communist Revolution of 1956.

School Disorders:
No Federal Aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has voted to cut off the federal assistance of any college student participating in campus disorders.
The House approved the provision offered by Rep. Otis Pike, D-N.Y., as an amendment to a $1 billion, two-year programs. Then it passed the extension of various college aid overall legislation, 348 to 5.
Pike, D-N.Y., noting he has two youngsters in college.
"They can tie up the dean, but I told them if they do these things, it will be at their own expense, not mine."
As proposed, Pike's amendment also would have hit at draft card burners and students found by college authorities to have participated in obstructing any defense activity, including operation of Selective Service offices. That part of his amendment, however, got lost in the shuffle as the House debated other limitations geared

Czechs Taking a Holiday Despite Red Army Rumors

By GERD KRIWANEK
PRAGUE (UPI)—Foreigners might fret about reports of Soviet army movements toward this nation's borders. But Czechs took a holiday today. On the streets men and women hurrying off to picnics in the countryside appeared surprised when told of reports from Warsaw that Red army units were seen heading this way. Impossible, they said. Here, as abroad, there was nothing to confirm Moscow was using force against its former Czech satellite. While Czechs celebrated the 23rd anniversary of World War II's end, criticism of their new reform, more liberal Commu- nist regime took no holiday in neighboring Poland. Warsaw Critical In Warsaw, newspapers at- tacked the Czechs for allowing criticism of socialism. The Polish Communist party news- paper Trybuna Ludu said the tone Thursday with an editorial that said: "We believe that those voices alien to the real feelings of the Czechoslovakian community and to friendship linking our nations will be forced to silence." Later, the Polish official Pa- news agency, dropped the word "forced" in relaying the editor- ial. But clearly Poland's Com- munist leaders, more loyal to Moscow, were unhappy with the Czechs for ousting Stalinists leaders this year and replacing them with a Red regime that permits public criticism. In Warsaw, Western diplo- mats were today seeing how far they could go on roads leading out of town. Thursday some were turned back at the city limits, a move apparently connected with the Soviet troop movements. Russia keeps 30,000 to 40,000 troops in Poland. Reports by witnesses that Red army units in Poland were moving Wednesday only 35 miles from the Czech frontier was linked by some observers to a Thursday commentary on Prague Radio appealing against Russian intervention in the style of the Soviet crushing of the Hungarian anti-Communist Re- volution of 1956. " . . . For God's sake, let us not have even an implication of a repetition of the tragic history of the reckoning of Yugoslavia (booted out of the Soviet bloc in 1948) or perhaps even that of Budapest of 1956," said the Prague broadcast Thursday.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has voted to cut off the federal assistance of any college student participating in campus disorders. The House approved the provision offered by Rep. Otis Pike, D-N.Y., as an amendment to a $1 billion, two-year programs. Then it passed the extension of various college aid overall legislation, 348 to 5. As proposed, Pike's amend- ment also would have hit at draft card burners and students found by college authorities to have participated in obstructing any defense activity, including operation of Selective Service offices. That part of his amendment, however, got lost in the shuffle as the House debated other limitations geared more directly to recent campus disturbances. After a series of votes on amendments aimed at denying federal money to college protesters, the House passed on a roll call the provision denying aid to students who college authorities say have violated lawful orders or rules in matters involving a "serious obstruction" of college activity.
